Paris—The French cabinet Tuesday unanimously approved the work of the French delegation at the international conference in London and thanked it for the important results it had attained in the interests of France.

The cabinet met Tuesday morning after having listened attentively to a report by Premier Herriot on the proceedings and results of the conference, gave its unqualified approval of the accord which had been concluded at the lengthy meeting at the British capital.

It was decided that the premier should read his declaration before the senate and chamber on Thursday, giving a complete report of the work of the London conference to both parties of the French legislature.

Meantime the ministers will attack an important problem of internal policy, meeting Tuesday evening to consider measures connected with the high cost of living, notably in regard to the price of bread.

The cordial reception accorded M. Herriot Tuesday morning by his colleagues of the cabinet echoed the enthusiasm of the throngs of men and women who came to greet him when he arrived from London Monday evening.

Berlin—It is generally expected that the Reichstag will meet Friday and that its decision on the results of the London reparations conference will be taken at the end of next week.

Monday's meeting of the cabinet under the chairmanship of President Ebert unanimously approved the German delegation's attitude during the London negotiations and the government is determined to dissolve the Reichstag in the event of the latter failing to sanction the London pact.

The government's policy in this regard was made clear to the leaders of the Reichstag parties in discussions after the cabinet meeting, when Chancellor Marx laid before them the results of the London parleys. He emphasized that from his personal interviews with M. Herriot in London he believed that the French premier had the best intentions and could be trusted; also that his aim was the pacification of Europe.

Governor's Record in Support

By Associated Press
Milwaukee—Charging that Governor Blaine has been on both sides of "almost every important question" and that his administration has been one of reaction instead of progress, Edwin J. Gross, president of the Wisconsin Men's Progressive association, in a statement here Tuesday called upon Progressives of the state not to compromise "for the sake of expediency." He announced his support of Lieutenant Governor George F. Comings for governor.

"Today he is the candidate of the wets," Gross said, speaking of the governor's record. "When the wets were fighting against the adoption of the eighteenth amendment he was the candidate of the dries. Today he is for LaFollette. In 1917 and 1918 John Blaine was too busy delivering four-minute speeches to raise his voice or lift his pen in his (LaFollette's) defense. During his political life, he has been the candidate of the Republicans, the Independents, the Equity society, the Non-Partisan league, the Dries and the Wets. He was even campaign manager for Woodrow Wilson."

Gross attacked the legislative record of the administration saying the executive has changed his stand on important questions. He further said that if the present administration had been a success "he would not now be compelled to call on Senator LaFollette for help."

The statement concluded with declaration that "another term of Blaine and there will be no Progressive cause."

Evanston, Ill.—Charles G. Dawes, once currency controller, once the A. E. Mr. Dawes' address will immediately follow that made by Mr. Jeffries, and after the benediction the ceremonies will end.

Lincoln, Neb.—Lincoln returned to normal Tuesday after having Monday night witnessed its fourth celebration attending the notification to members of the Bryan family of their nomination by the Democratic party.

William Jennings Bryan had been honored by middlewestern citizens on three different occasions when he was notified of his nomination for president. Monday night "Brother Charles," governor of the state, and its adopted son for 30 years, received the highest honor in his political life, when he was officially tendered the nomination as Democratic candidate for the vice presidency.

Governor Bryan Monday went over with the Democratic field marshal some of the details of his itinerary, but no announcement has yet been made of any dates or places.

The big University of Nebraska Memorial stadium furnished ample space for the celebration Monday night. A colorful and at times monotonous audience nearly filled the stadium. Cheers greeted declarations by the vice presidential nominee and Senator Harrison of Mississippi who made the notification address, in which they

Washington, D. C.—Acceptance, on all sides, of the Dawes plan for the settlement of the reparation problem will have its reflex in the political campaign here.

The Republicans are openly claiming credit for the achievement offering it as a concrete answer to the charges of their opponents that nothing has been done during the Republican administration toward co-operation with Europe, especially to stabilize the situation that has persisted in an unsettled state since the armistice.

The Democrats do not criticize the Dawes plan or find flaws, with its provisions in any sense. They take an entirely different tack, namely that what has just been done could have been done and would have been done under American leadership five years ago but for the restrictive policy of hands off dictated by the irreconcilable sentiment in Congress and the association of the chief executive.

Although the Republicans feel that the end achieved is all that will be noted by the public at large, the Democrats are preparing to show that in the actually writing of the Dawes plan, Owen Young, chairman of the General Electric Co., a Democrat, played the really important role. Apart from this, they may be some disbelievers which would seek to prove that the Coolidge administration declined to assist in the naming of the experts who now have made the Dawes plan possible and that but for the timely intervention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States the whole scheme might have been wrecked on the rocks of irreconcilable opposition to any governmental action with the reparation problem, direct or indirect.

Secretary Hughes originally proposed that the experts be unofficial and disconnected from the government, and that the United States should not be understood either to sanction or sponsor the proposals, but now that they have turned out well the American government is openly claiming credit for their performance and the political orators are not hesitating to give the impression that the administration sent General Dawes abroad and that the whole thing was a part of the administration's official foreign policy.

For many years the argument has been made that America's part should be to advise an economic settlement and to remain apart from political problems. The two have been interwoven inseparably but the United States avoided the political aspects by having an unofficial body participate in the discussions. It is the economic result which had to be obtained through political channels and now that a settlement has been reached the administration is enthusiastic over the prospects of a favorable trade to American business and export trade. The Republican hope is that the era of prosperity will begin soon enough to make the voter indifferent to change and contented with the administration in power, forgetting past omissions in the light of the new developments.

Milwaukee—One of the most severe wind storms in the history of Milwaukee accompanied by a heavy fall of rain swept over this section early Tuesday, causing considerable property damage and indirectly the loss of one life. Lester Houpp, 19 years old, who was repairing a broken electric connection, was killed when he picked up a live wire early Tuesday.

The property damage was confined largely to the vicinity of the lake front. Several valuable yachts were washed ashore from their moorings and a seaplane which has been moored in the harbor for several weeks was thrown upon the shore by the fury of the gale which reached a velocity of 50 miles an hour. A great number of trees were broken and uprooted and construction towers were blown down upon a neighboring house, causing considerable damage.

Indiana Senator Declares Arms
Conference and Dawes Plan
Greatest Acts of Era

By Associated Press
Chicago—Allied-German acceptance of the Dawes plan, was declared by Senator Watson of Indiana, in an address Tuesday before the Hamilton club of Chicago to be the Republican party's answer to the inquiry of John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee, as to what single contribution the present Republican administration had made to the peace of the world.

"The arms conference and the Dawes plan represent the two longest steps ever taken for the pacification of the world and the United States under a Republican administration took both of them without belonging to the league of nations or being in any way entangled in its political involvements," Senator Watson asserted.

"In very truth, if we had belatedly been no longer could have occupied the impartial position of umpire and could not have well exerted the powerful and conclusive influence that we did."

Senator Watson, himself one of the candidates for the Republican vice presidential nomination at the Cleveland convention, spoke at a luncheon of the Hamilton club held as a preliminary to the notification ceremonies Tuesday night for the convention's vice presidential choice, Charles G. Dawes. He paid high tribute to Mr. Dawes.

The Indiana senator assailed the Democratic position on the league of nations and on foreign affairs as inconsistent and grotesque. The Democratic platform "proposal for a national referendum on the league," he said, was "far-out, illegal, unconstitutional and revolutionary."

The election of 1920, Senator Watson contended, had provided a referendum and the course of the Republican party under Presidents Harding and Coolidge, he added, had been in strict accord with that referendum.

RAIN CUTS CROWD
AT WAUSAU FAIR

By Associated Press
Wausau—The Wisconsin Valley fair and exposition opened here Tuesday. It being the fifty-sixth annual meeting of the Marquette Agricultural society.

Heavy rains Monday night interfered with the attendance Tuesday. The exhibits are the largest and of a higher class than ever before, and much interest is added because of the completion of the new $65,000 exposition hall, made possible by the cooperation of the county, the late D. L. Plummer and Walter Alexander.

When the fair opened Tuesday morning, more than 500 dairy and beef cattle were on the grounds and the housing facilities were found inadequate, although new pavilions were built two years. The showing of the Boys Calf clubs also is large, there being more than 75 entries. These and the overflow of cattle are in large tents still being overcrowded. The exhibits of dairy products and of the aparies are larger than usual. The backward season and the early date of the fair has affected the showing of farm products, yet they are fairly representative in variety and quality. The fair closes Friday.

Plymouth, Vt.—President Coolidge was host Tuesday at his father's home to three fellow vacationists—Henry Ford, Thomas Edison and Harvey Firestone. Word was received early Monday night that the party planned a visit here Tuesday and the president arranged for their reception at his father's home.

The famous inventor and manufacturers have been traveling together with their families on outings for several summers. This year they are making vacation headquarters at the Wayside Inn, Sudbury, Mass., about 200 miles from here, owned by Mr. Ford. President Harding was their guest on a vacation jaunt just after he entered office.

Exchange of Pleasantries Between

Closes Testimony

of State's Mental Experts

By Associated Press

Chicago—Testimony was finished Tuesday in the case of Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb, confessed murderers of Robert Franks. A final exchange of pleasantries between Dr. William O. Krohn, state alienist, and attorneys for the defense, marked the conclusion of this phase of the proceedings.

As both sides declared their cases complete, the attorneys gathered before the bench and conferred as to procedure on arguments. Thomas Marshall, legal expert for the state's attorney, was announced as the opening orator for the prosecution. A five minute recess preceded the start of the arguments.

COURTESY MARKS QUESTIONS

Courtesy raised to the highest degree marked the cross examination Tuesday of Dr. William O. Krohn, state alienist, and last witness in the judicial hearing which is to determine the punishment of Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb for the kidnapping and murdering of Robert Franks. In contrast to Monday's proceedings when the expert and Benjamin Bachrach, of counsel for the defense, shouted angry retorts back and forth, were there smiles and "pleas" exchanged Tuesday. The expert punctiliously used "sir" in every answer and the attorney never failed to address the witness as "Doctor."

Even thrusts at the stands, each of the sides to the case have taken, failed to provoke sharp retorts.

Dr. Krohn once found occasion to dig the defense alienist's theories, explaining that he had given no formal opinion on the mentalities of the defendants since June 1, and that newspaper interviews quoting him on that had resulted from his attempts to explain "exaggerated claims made by the defense."

"You mean that the reporters told you these exaggerations were offered by the defense, do you not?" asked Mr. Bachrach.

"Not entirely. Anyway I tried to explain them for the boys," was the answer.

"Ask him if he could explain them," suggested Clarence S. Darrow to Mr. Bachrach.

"Could you explain them?" the witness was asked.

The doctor flushed a bit at the implication, but smiled and answered negatively.

The program for Tuesday called for the start of arguments as soon as the cross examination was finished.

Mr. Darrow announced Tuesday he would ask permission of the court to have the defense make the opening and closing argument on the theory that the burden of proof of mitigation is on the defense.

MIDWEST ARTISTS LACK INCENTIVE OF RECOGNITION

Artists Who Lack Support in Own Country Gain Appreciation in East

By Associated Press
Chicago—The midland must give its artists greater recognition else the heritage from the pioneer's pen, pencil and brush showing that the middle-west has all the material necessary for the novel, the drama or the character painting will be lost, declare art folk and prominently interested friends here.

Midland landscape, its people and atmosphere have all that is required for great beauty in expression, they say, but because there is a backward response to his work, the east is annexing the western artist.

Painters, architects, musicians and sculptors from the midland-west, said to be unappreciated in their native fields, are pointed out by these people as reaching fame and success in the east, in an environment where there is more encouragement and recognition in their products.

We do not believe this situation to be one of higher literary or art intelligence among eastern people but rather to an uncultivated sense in the people of our section," said an authority in art circles here. "We know that midlanders appreciate natural beauty, our open expanses are too full of it not to be absorbed, but it appears that when it finds expression in book, painting or etching, the significance is not entirely felt."

"The majority of the successful authors in New York and New England came from the midland, as well as a large number of the prize winners at the exhibitions of painters and sculptors held in that section. Perhaps the east is more inclined to the freshness and responsiveness of middle-western products which we have about us each day."

Realizing this tendency, steps have been taken to give the midland artist better facilities and to encourage a more profitable audience. The Allied Arts Association has been formed by persons interested in and directing art for its own sake. A modification in the immigration laws is seen and the association plans to aid and encourage all artists and people of the midland in hopes of putting midland life into midland art.

"We will not concern ourselves with foreign artists but we will give our energy and efforts for the benefit of our own," said John M. Stahl, the president. "We will especially help the younger artists who are working honestly and hard to make a reputation, and of the older who blazed the way by showing we have all the material necessary for the novel, the drama, etcher or character painter."

HIGHWAY BUREAU LED IN ECONOMY

Madison—Fresh fuel will be added to the state tax controversy by figures contained in a bulletin just issued by the tax commission, showing that state expenditures have risen each year of the Blaine administration, except one.

In 1920 total disbursements were $16,814,843. In 1921, $22,027,507; in 1922, $24,816,681; in 1923, $25,254,573. The figures show a big jump in 1921, as compared to the previous year, the difference being approximately $8,000,000. The next year, expenditures rose another $2,500,000. The following year they were reduced by an approximately equal amount.

The interesting thing about the reduction in 1923 is the detailed figures show that saving was in the highway department—the department which the governor says spends the money and boosts taxes.

Expenditures of this department for the same years follow: 1920, $3,080,891; 1921, $5,480,430; 1922, $7,531,872; 1923, $4,494,127. The highway department thus cut its expenditures in 1923 by $3,144,745, as compared with 1922, while the total reduction in all state expenditures in the same year was but $2,564,018. The figures, therefore, show that state expenditures as a whole continued to rise in 1923, as did the decline in the totals was effected through a large saving in the highway department.

MAKE UP "PROSPECT LIST" FOR Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN

Discussion of the best method for securing a list of prospective members occupied the greater portion of the meeting of the Y. M. C. A. membership committee Monday evening. It is the plan this year to have interested members secure the "prospects" in their blocks.

The committee planned to secure a membership of 1,400 which will be slightly in excess of that of last year. The membership will be divided into 1,000 men and 400 boys. The boys campaign will be held first this year and will be conducted during the latter part of September. The tentative date for the opening of the men's campaign is Sept. 30.

MIDDLE-AGED GOLF FANS PLAY DESPITE DOCTOR'S WARNING

Cleveland Indian Scouts Four—some Total 227 Years Among Them

Cleveland—The warning of London physicians that persons 50 years old or more are endangering their lives by playing golf is scoffed at by Cleveland's "Indian Scouts" foursome, believed to be one of the oldest active quarters in the world, who may be seen regularly on the golf links here. Their combined age is 227 years. None of them started playing golf until he was past the half-century mark.

The foursome is composed of Charles W. Burrows, 74; G. T. McIntosh, 75; J. W. S. Webb, 69; and A. W. Neale, 59. All are prominent business men here and may be seen on the links "every Saturday and a couple or three times a week," as one of them put it.

When they are "on their game" the foursome play in the low eighties or nineties. They have been playing together for about 12 years. "I don't know of any pastime more pleasant, more healthful and more invigorating for a man between the ages of 50 and 80," Mr. Burrows said. "Of course a man who allows his muscles to become soft and flabby from lack of exercise, smoking, over-eating and drinking and then goes out on the course and overtaxes his strength is in danger, but moderate golf means health for a man past 50 who keeps himself in condition by yourself or even with three friends would be too monotonous. Playing golf, you exert yourself for an instant with a stroke drive and then you rest while the others tee off. If you get tired you can sit down and rest, and you're resting in the open air."

"Golf holds your interest. You're continually trying to better your game. You forget the poor shots and try to remember some of the good ones. The four of us play about the same game, but we're continually trying to beat each other, and that's where a lot of the fun comes in."

"Men of our age can't play tennis or baseball because these games are so strenuous. We're satisfied with golf, despite the English doctor's warning, and I guess we'll stick to it."

Oshkosh—The third matrimonial venture of George Hollands, Civil war veteran, formerly county register of deeds, was as short lived as his second.

The action was brought by Mrs. Hollands, who was Pauline Brandt, Bloomington Ill. Her attorney, Frank B. Keefe, said she had misunderstood the law.

WHITE HOUSE DUE FOR MORE PATCHES

Home of President Is Dilapidated But U. S. Can't Afford New One

Washington.—The White House is pretty rickety it has been generally admitted in Washington for some time.

It looks all right. Cracks in the walls and crumbling places in the columns are kept neatly plastered up and painted over. Sagging floors have been braced. Weak spots in the ceiling have been strengthened. The roof has been patched and the foundations have been tinkered with.

To the eye there's nothing the matter with the old relic. There isn't even any likelihood that it will tumble down unexpectedly and bury the president in the ruins.

But underneath it all, the White House is dilapidated. What's more, experts say it's past the point where it pays to go on repairing it. That is, it needs such constant repairs that every few years they amount to as much as a new building would cost.

On the strength of representations to this effect, the Appropriations Committee of the House of Representatives recently sent for Lieut. Col. Clarence Sherrill, who has charge of public buildings and grounds in the capital, and asked him what a new White House would set the country back.

"About a million," said the colonel. Well, the committee had just been cutting the stuffing out of the "independent offices appropriations bill," in line with the rule for general governmental economy, so the committee members didn't see their way clear to the addition of a $1,000,000 item for a new executive mansion. And there's no prospect that any such item will be tacked on any time in the near future.

But just to show that this isn't necessarily the best kind of economy—

Plans for another White House job of repair work are to be submitted to President Coolidge shortly involving a $400,000 expenditure. They call for the fireproofing of the entire structure, which is said to be urgently necessary.

HUBBY'S RIVAL SAVES HIM FROM HANGING

Kenosha—Tony Maxin came home Sunday and found his wife in the arm of a boarder. He said nothing but went down to the basement of his home and hanged himself. The boarder heard a noise in the basement, went down and saved the husband's life.

Two hours later Maxin again attempted to hang himself. Again the boarder arrived in time and cut him down from the rafter. This time the boarder called the police and Maxin was locked up.

The husband was arraigned before Judge Robert B. Baker, Monday. He said that jealousy caused him to make the attempt on his life and told of finding his wife in the boarder's arms. The judge fined Maxin $10 and costs on a charge of disorderly conduct.

The wife paid the fine.

EXPECT REPORT ON OIL HEATING BIDS

Council Still Considering Installation of Oil Heating Apparatus

A report is due at the meeting of the common council Wednesday evening from the committee on public grounds and buildings on bids for installation of an oil heating system in the city hall. The bids were opened at the last meeting and referred to the committee. The same committee also had referred to it a number of coal dealers' bid on supplying city buildings with fuel. These will be rejected if the council decides to install an oil heating system.

Paving contractors' bids for paving the entire length of Leminwah-st from Pacific to Second-ave will be opened in Wednesday evening's meeting. This is the second time the city has advertised for bids on this project. A bid previously accepted was reconsidered and rejected.

Bids for installing heating apparatus in the City home had been referred to the committee on poor, and an ordinance to regulate traffic and parking on Appleton streets had been referred to the ordinance committee.

SCOUT COUNCIL WILL PLAN WORK

Valley Organization Will Meet Wednesday Evening to Prepare Program

Activities which will be taken up by various troops after school opens will be discussed by Valley council, Boy Scouts of America, at a special meeting called by P. O. Ketcher, scout executive, for 7:30 Wednesday evening in the headquarters in Insurance-bldg. Applications of new troops and appointments of scoutmasters also will be approved.

Mr. Ketcher's work during the few weeks he has been valley executive has resulted in well organized district committees in practically all of the cities and towns of the central Fox river valley. Council representatives from Appleton, Neenah, Menasha, Kimberly, Little Chute and Kaukauna will be present at the meeting.

Attention now will be centered on reorganization of existing troops, organization of new ones and preparation of a scouting program. It is believed that the foundations have been well laid for the work of the coming season and that boy scout activity will be more extensive than ever, providing the required leaders can be obtained.

RED ARROW VETS VISIT BUDDIES AT ANNUAL REUNION

Thousands of Thirty-second Division Men Will Meet in Milwaukee

Milwaukee—The fifth annual reunion of the 32nd (Red Arrow) Division Veterans' association, which will be held in Milwaukee, Sept. 13, 14, and 15, will be more than a pleasure gathering of men who represented Wisconsin and Michigan in the World war for it will mean the renewing of the spirit of comradeship, according to Major General William G. Haan, its commander.

The origin and history of this association is unique. After the armistice, the 32nd Division was a part of the army of occupation at the Coblenz bridgehead in Germany. Major General Haan conceived the idea of organizing the men of the division so that later when the men returned to civilian life they could foster and perpetuate a spirit of comradeship.

General Haan detailed Lt. Col. Paul B. Clemens and Lt. Col. Guy M. Wilson to work out the details in connection with an association that would live until the ranks were thinned out by time alone.

25,000 MEMBERS

At the first reunion held in Milwaukee in 1920, several thousand members were added, and many more have joined at subsequent yearly reunions, until now the roster totals 25,000 members, and every state in the union is represented. The majority of the members are from Michigan and Wisconsin, whose national guard units made up this division, but replacements were added after each encounter with the enemy.

The association is purely social and fraternal. One of the greatest achievements of the association are: Honorary President, Major General William G. Haan, vice-president, Major General William Lassiter, president, Paul B. Clemens, Milwaukee.

WOULD STOP BARBERS FROM BOBBING HAIR

Madison—Barbers and beauty parlor owners may mix during the next session of the Wisconsin legislature, according to present indications, on the question of whether barbers shall be permitted to bob women's hair and do other work now in vogue among the fairer sex.

Rumors of a clash have reached the state health department in the form of numerous inquiries from over the state. Under existing laws, health officers declare, barbers may bob women's hair but that is as far as they may go. It is said that some beauty parlor operators favor eliminating their power on part of the regular barbershops. On the other hand, barbers of the state are reported to favor an amendment to barber laws so as to eliminate the sex limitation on the work they may perform.

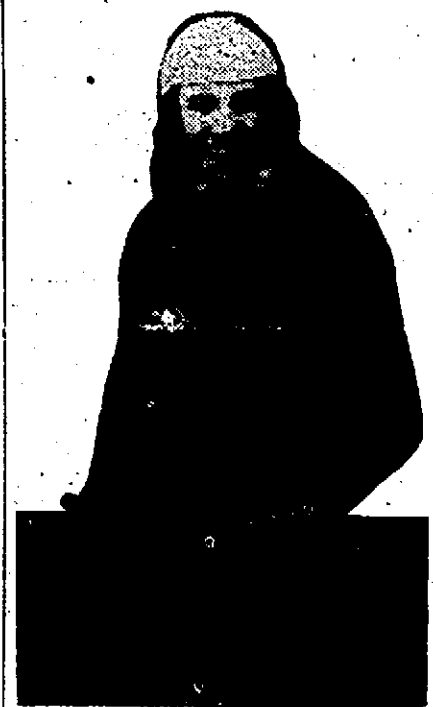

Wisconsin has not yet had a test of the hairbobbing question in the courts. It is stated. In four other states, however, supreme court decisions have been rendered upholding authority of barbers to bob. Recently a decision of this kind was handed down in Minnesota.

Health authorities expect several proposed amendments to existing laws to be offered during the coming legislative session.

Daredevil Girl Aviator Will Do Tricks At Fair

LILLIAN BOYER

Miss Lillian Boyer, who for two years at the fair gave thrilling aerial performances, changing from automobile to airplane, will be seen at Milwaukee again beginning Aug. 25. Miss Boyer, who has established headquarters near New Butler, was scheduled to be there the week of Aug. 25 to overhaul her air machines. Because her holiday and the state fair week were simultaneous, she called on Secretary O. E. Remy and volunteered to do a stunt a day in her plane, for old time's sake.

"I really should be resting," she said, "but people at the Wisconsin fair have been so appreciative in the past that I have decided to contribute a little to the success of the fair and will do all my new tricks with my fast new planes thereby 'keeping up' with my act and at the same time doing my bit to help make the fair a success."

CLAIM BLAINE PLAN UNFAIR TO COUNTY

Good Roads Association Charges Outagamie-co Will Lose $23,200

Madison—Under the plan proposed by the administration for the distribution of the proceeds of the gasoline tax on a mileage basis, Outagamie-co would lose $23,200.00, which would be diverted to other counties in the state. This is charged in a bulletin published by the Good Roads Association of Wisconsin. The bulletin says:

"The plan proposed by the administration is for distribution of the gasoline tax on the basis of road mileage in each county as compared to the percentage of the total road mileage in the state.

"Outagamie-co has 1.5 per cent of the total road mileage of the state and would receive that share of the $4,000,000 raised from the gasoline tax. The county pays 2.08 per cent of the total amount of motor license fees, which is a close approximation to what she would pay in gasoline taxes. She would thus lose .58 per cent or $23,200.

"Counties having a large automobile ownership and large road traffic, hence needing road funds and contributing a large amount to the gasoline tax, would have their funds diverted to counties with a lesser automobile ownership, contributing less to the gasoline tax, having lesser needs for road funds, but a larger road mileage. There is a reason and it is now under the state trunk highway act for richer counties contributing to road improvement in poorer counties but there is no basis for the diversion of funds as indicated in this plan."

LA FOLLETTE FOR BLAINE

Mr. La Follette has endorsed Governor Blaine for reelection. This was expected and, in fact, advertised some two weeks ago, so that the shock to the other candidates has been somewhat absorbed. The senator indorses Blaine because that is obviously the best move to preserve his organization in Wisconsin. In other words, it is good politics. In making the announcement Senator La Follette says Wisconsin has enjoyed, under Mr. Blaine, "the benefits of honest, progressive government in which all of the people of the state have shared." We are afraid this is a little too inclusive. We doubt if the manufacturers of the state will subscribe to it, as well as business interests generally. If the other candidates are telling the truth, the Blaine administration has cost the taxpayers something like $9,000,000 more than any previous administration. The benefits from this heavy increase in the shape of "progressive government" are not very well defined to the average taxpayer, although they may be to the army of boards, commissions and office holders which are administering progress.

Mr. La Follette in a signed article issued simultaneously with the indorsement of the Blaine ticket, declares the recent advances in farm prices are "gold bricks, highly polished, by the special interest government for the farmer in exchange for his vote." He says the market is being manipulated by Wall street to deceive the farmer with the idea that agricultural conditions are improved. This is typically La Follette. We presume the Liverpool quotations on wheat are evidence that the British bankers have entered into the conspiracy to delude the American farmer. If the farmer gets good prices for his product, it is all wrong, because it is a "gold brick" from Wall street; likewise if farm prices are down the same interests are to blame. Economic conditions, the laws of supply and demand, have no place in the super-progressive program. It is only political action that can make or unmake farm prosperity. Still, we are inclined to think the farmer who markets his wheat for $1.40 to $1.50 per bushel this fall, and the corn producer who gets a big price for his corn, are not likely to credit either the cunning or philanthropy of Wall street and special interests for his prosperity.

A JOB FOR FORD

Henry Ford has been nominated for a half-dozen different offices. He might have been chosen by a political party or a group of admirers to run for president. He may be in the presidential campaign notwithstanding that he declined to enter it, as he was formally nominated in Nebraska, and his name may be printed at the head of the independent ticket in that state. Now he is urged to become a senatorial candidate in Michigan. The next thing we know Mr. Ford will be invited to run for Mayor for Dearborn. Why are so many citizens suggesting jobs for him? Don't they think he has enough work to do? Or do they believe that he is tired of making cars and money, and buying mines and forests?

If Mr. Ford wants another job we have one to tender for which he is exceptionally well qualified. He would, we think, make an excellent traffic officer. We should like to see him organize and direct an "American Ford-Drivers association," the object of which would be to promote safety not only of Ford drivers, but of drivers of all cars, and pedestrians as well. In this field he could do more for the public welfare than in any other.

It is possible to find honest and capable men to serve the people in the White house and capitol, but the man who can teach Ford drivers how to drive has not come into prominence. Mr. Ford's car, we notice, imitates the antics of the flea on streets and roads. It is never where you think it is, and is always where you think it is not. You hear a swish, and look, and at your side, or behind you, or in front of you, or may be over or under you, is Mr. Ford's car.

Mr. Ford should refuse political and other honors offered to him and voluntarily elect himself chief traffic officer of a Ford Safety society. He could hardly hope to be more successful than other men in Washington, and, if he went there he would lose his popularity in a short time. He would be accused of building cars to help the Standard Oil company. On the other hand, he could relieve the anxiety of automobile owners and increase the safety and happiness of the public by instituting a great school for Ford drivers. He might found a Ford Drivers' university, with colleges in the principal cities and a post-graduate school at River Rouge.

THE LONDON SETTLEMENT

The agreement between the allies and Germany has been signed. It is a complete acceptance of the Dawes plan of adjusting and handling reparations. The differences which arose between France and Germany at the last minute over evacuation of the Ruhr were removed by acceptance of the French proposal placing the maximum time at a year.

The results of the London conference are a triumph for American diplomacy that will rank with our greatest achievements in this field. The world agrees, we think, that an amicable settlement of the reparations never could have been reached, particularly with French occupation of German territory, without intervention by the United States. We were able to render this service because we looked at the issues from the standpoint of a disinterested arbiter.

It is held by some of our isolationists that this is sufficient proof of the wisdom of our policy of remaining outside the League of Nations and of our repudiation of the Versailles treaty and the negotiation of separate peace arrangements with Germany and Austria. Such a conclusion is an arbitrary assumption. There is just as much reason for believing that had the United States been represented on the reparations commission in the first instance its neutrality and desire to serve only the ends of justice would have been quite as effective in solving this problem then as now. Membership in the League under suitable reservations would not have entangled us in the affairs of Europe in any sense whatsoever. In the reparations settlement we have technically "entangled" ourselves. That this acceptance of international responsibility will unfit us for further service in Europe no one will seriously contend.

The only difference between our cooperation with Europe for interpretation and amelioration of the peace terms in 1919 and 1924 is that much of the distress, financial chaos, civil warfare and the French aggression would have been avoided. We are finally going to perform this service for Europe without any sacrifice or peril to ourselves, just as we might have done five years ago.

FAMILY REUNIONS

THE chatter's intense and excitement's ahum when a family reunion's on tap. From all nooks and corners the relatives come: it's a thriller for mother and pap.
The autos drive up and the buggies drag in; a scene that can hardly be painted. There're kisses and "howdies" mid clatter and din as the grownups and kids get acquainted.
"Say, who is the guy with the whiskers galore?" Aunt Susie will ask of Aunt Jen. "I know that I never have seen him before." And she never will see him again.
The relatives' kids get to playin' around and the meek ones are shocked by the strong. They wrestle and wipe half the dirt off the ground and just everything seems to go wrong.
And then they all join in a picky lunch. A riot describes it, I guess. "The relatives wonder who started this lunch. Who was it promoted this mess?"
When evening time comes and the party is o'er and there's naught but a cluttered up lawn, the old folks are glad and they've seen 'em once more, but they also are glad that they've gone.

Too many who catch on to things quickly let go the same way.

INTERMARRIAGE

An interesting and enlightening study of the effects of intermarriage or breeding through four generations has been reported by Dr. Douglas P. Murphy, of Rutherford, N. C. It is commonly believed that the marriage of first cousins results in mental deficiency, physical abnormality, or weak vitality in the offspring, although medical authorities, and students of eugenics maintain that the only injury from such inbreeding is due to the inheritance received and is not attributable to consanguinity. That is, any defect of the mixing of bloods, though if there is some family taint of a heritable nature of course the chance of inheritance are doubled by a consanguineous union.

Dr. Murphy has traced the history of a family from the first known ancestors who came to Pennsylvania from Germany in 1731. He died in Pennsylvania, leaving 24 children. One of the children migrated to North Carolina, and his descendants have lived there ever since. All members that lived to adult age married and had many children. Nearly all had little education, averaging a few months of school during three or four winters. They have remained farmers mostly, their social and economic condition remaining about the same throughout the four generations.

In this family there were seven cases of marriages of first cousins. The second couple were double first cousins.

There is no record of any physical abnormality in the family history of this clan. There was one case of slightly impaired mentality in the third generation, but that was not attributable to consanguinity, for the following generations were normal.

One observation Dr. Murphy makes is that the death rate of this family is considerably higher than the death rate of the other families in the same community, which he believes is suggestive of impaired vitality.

Another observation is that the infant death rate is higher than the average for the community.

The death rate is considerably higher, Dr. Murphy points out, when the inbreeding is most marked. From this remarkable study Dr. Murphy concludes that intermarriage is a cause of decided increase in infant mortality, but that the marriage of cousins does not lead to mental or physical defect in the offspring.

Even so, it is probably better to mate outside of the family, for the best blood is improved by new blood. Such a study as Dr. Murphy's thoroughly disposes of the superstitions regarding the marriage of cousins, but it does not bring into question the principle of increasing the vitality, by regular contributions of new blood.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Diabetic Patient Too Fat

Where can I obtain the flour that contains no starch, which you referred to in an answer to a correspondent? I have diabetes. I am 46, 68 inches tall, weigh 172 pounds. What should I weigh? (Mrs. B. M. H.)

Answer.—The flour is a cassia flour made by Lister Bros., 405 Lexington avenue, New York. You are dangerously fat, for a diabetic patient. You should weigh less than 150 pounds. But reduction, while advisable is practicable only under the immediate direction of your physician. The use of gluten flours in place of ordinary flour, so often resorted to by ill advised obese persons, is of no practical value so far as reduction is concerned. Nor should every diabetic individual use a starchless flour, for as a rule a certain amount of starch is desirable and necessary in the diet in such cases. Diabetes is a functional deficiency, a lowered capacity to utilize carbohydrate (starches and sugars). It is better for the diabetic individual to take as much carbohydrate as his system can utilize, and that is an individual question which must be determined by the physician for each individual case. As a general health rule for diabetic patients, it is better to keep rather thin and it is dangerous to grow fat. For that matter it is dangerous for any of us over 30 to grow fat or to accumulate slacker flesh, but particularly dangerous in diabetes.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Slowly but surely the German attacking columns were rolling the Belgian-French defenders back on Brussels. Despite a rigid censorship it was known that skirmishing which began at daylight at a number of points along the line had steadily increased. The capture of the capital was believed certain. The German army numbered more than half a million men. President Wilson issued an appeal to all Americans to remain strictly neutral. The general Russian advance along the German and Austrian frontier was in progress.

FAMOUS SAYINGS OF FAMOUS PEOPLE

Dan Steinberg: Get the drift of the story?

They say every dog has his days, but the kids at the old swimming hole report that weather conditions have stopped even the dog days from coming around this year.

An Appleton barber says that the boob who started that wild rumor about bobbed hair going out of style thought he was telling a hair raising story. It might be well for some of the bald heads to listen to it instead of dopping their heads with a hair restorer.

Wasn't that a beautiful picture of that champagne bottle on our picture page last night? And didn't Secretary Hughes form a fine background?

Champagne is so high in England that the poor people can't afford to drink it. The same is true right here in Appleton.

Mud slinging usually becomes quite lively just before election day. Now we'll have a chance to see whether a mud bath is really beautifying or not.

Next chance we get we mean to ask Ike to tell us that story of the pole cat that held up traffic for 45 minutes at Three Lakes.

What a shame to keep Bryan and Dawes in ignorance so long regarding their nominations! Seems that somebody ought to telegraph Hell's Marlar right away so he can prepare for what might be an embarrassing surprise tonight at the notification ceremonies.

It seems that the Heinemanns are always butting into family affairs of one couple. First Daddy Heinemann ties the nuptial knot for them, and then his son, the judge, comes along and unties it. The couple probably is wondering whom to blame most.

Lots of young folks will fly to Menominee, Mich., to be married there in order to shun publicity. But here is one person who thinks marrying in Menominee attracts too much notice. He lives in Menominee and intends to marry a girl in Kaukauna.

World's News Told In Brief, Simple Style

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

It may be significant that Antonio Entenza, just-appointed La Follette campaign manager in California, is a long-time friend of Senator Hiram Johnson.

If Johnson is human, he must be sore at the turn-down the Republicans gave him when he asked them to nominate him for president. And he has been a Progressive himself in his time.

As a La Follette, if that's what the Entenza development implies, he might count considerably on the coast. At any rate, his vote would count in the senate, where he has still five years to serve.

PRE-PROHIBITION STUFF

Prohibition officials resent the suggestion, from wet sources, that influence had anything to do with the sequel to the raid on the New York home of Hugo Gilbert de Fritsch. The dry agents found drinkables, all right—scores of cases. But it was pre-prohibition stuff.

That, prohibition officials say, was why the wet goods were returned with abject apologies, and why Agent R. J. Owens, who led the raid, was fired; not because they found de Fritsch to be a very rich man, his wife a niece by marriage of Chief Justice Taft.

STILL FIGHTING

The Brazilian rebels are out of the city of Sao Paulo. They say they abandoned sound as if they were beaten property there and they were afraid. In the fighting, it would be smashed up. They're still campaigning in the open country. One dispatch mentions hostilities on a 300 mile front, which doesn't sound as if they were beaten yet, as the government claims.

MORE TROUBLE

The United States thought it had Honduras' rebellion patched up. The warring leaders even signed a treaty on the cruiser Milwaukee. But now they have resumed fighting. Moreover, it threatens to slip into Nicaraguan territory. Nicaraguan troops are concentrating to resist this. American marines are ashore and alert.

KING IGNORED

English and Russian representatives have arranged a commercial treaty between their countries. It is rather vague, probably won't amount to much. But the interesting point is, it's minus the King's signature. The king's signature on such documents has been a mere form for years. Nevertheless, it's a form that never was neglected in all England's history before.

With a dog as her only companion, an English woman recently traveled 20,000 miles into the heart of Africa.

TWO FLOORS OF GOOD THINGS TO WEAR

Make Paper From Papyrus

(From The Publishers Weekly)

Paper is to be made again from the papyrus plant. Two thousand years ago papyrus was the world's principal writing material, and it was from the name papyrus that we obtained our word paper.

Papyrus is a reed growing on marshy river banks. It abounds in Abyssinia, and the valley of the upper Nile, as well as in Palestine. Now reeds are being built in Zululand and other parts of Africa to utilize papyrus, and though the paper made from it will not be the same as used by the ancients, it is interesting to think of papyrus being revived for its old purpose.

Nowadays the pith is taken and pulped, and paper is made from it in the same way as from wood pulp; but in olden times the triangular stem was split lengthwise into thin layers, which were subjected to great pressure, when they adhered and became one sheet. This was dried in the sun, and various sheets were joined together to form a long roll, sometimes 60 feet long.

Around Lake Chad and in the Congo region are thousands of acres of papyrus, and the Belgians are trying to found a papyrus industry at Elizabethville. A factory has actually been built by Norwegians at Unfolosi, Zululand.

Frozen meat first became known to the civilized world when a party of Eskimoes brought frozen game in airtight cases to Harwich, England, in January, 1816.

The Question Box

(Any reader can get the answer to any question by writing The Appleton Post-Crescent Information Bureau, Frederick J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. This offer closes strictly to information. The Bureau cannot give advice on legal, medical, and financial matters. It does not attempt to settle domestic troubles, nor to undertake exhaustive research on any subject. Write your question plainly and briefly. Give full name and address and enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. All replies are sent direct to the inquirer.)

Q. Why was the name "strawberry" given to the fruit? V. L. W.

A. The name "strawberry" is derived from the Anglo-Saxon. The exact application of the word "straw" to the berry is uncertain. The Anglo-Saxon word literary means "that which is scattered about," and was originally applied to the broken stalks of grain after threshing. In connection with the berry, the word may be taken in the sense of a long stem, referring to the runners of the plant or it may allude to an old habit of stringing the berries on a straw. The word is often explained as a corruption of the supposed strawberry, or even as an effort to give the common use to the berry or thing about the plants to keep the earth from selling the berries. No corresponding word appears in other languages.

Q. When was the English sparrow brought to this country? J. H. G.

A. The English sparrow was brought to the United States from England in 1850 by Nicholas Pike and other directors of the Brooklyn Institute when eight pairs were liberated in Brooklyn, New York.

Q. How old is the Royal Geographical Society of England? M. G.

A. This society was founded in 1830. Its object is to collect, register, digest and print in a cheap and convenient form such useful and interesting facts and discoveries as the Society might from time to time acquire. It has always welcomed to its fellowship those anxious to further this object by their interest and support as well as those able to take more active part in their work of discovery and exploration.

Q. Is there an air gun designed like a pistol and of the same size? R. E.

A. The National Rifle Association does not know of any air gun that is designed like a pistol. It would be impossible on such a design to procure a barrel length sufficiently long to permit the construction of a sufficiently strong spring and air compression cylinder.

Q. How long have cucumbers been grown? W. N. G.

A. The cucumber is one of the oldest of the garden vegetables. It had its origin some 5,000 years ago in the Far East, probably in India.

SUNDAY SET NEW RECORD FOR CAR TRAVEL ON ROADS

Traffic Census Showed 5,610 Cars on Appleton-Kaukauna-rd

Two new traffic records were made Sunday, according to a census taken for the county highway department at Kimberly station on the Little Chute rd.

More automobiles passed over highway 15 Sunday than on any previous Sunday in the history of concrete roads in this county. The record of 5,610 was bettered only once, and that was on July 4, 1923, the day of Appleton's monster Independence day celebration, and that count showed only 50 more cars.

Another feature of Sunday's traffic count was the record number of cars that traveled over the highway in one hour. The count showed 565 cars, or 9 1/2 cars a minute.

There were 408 more cars on the road than on the same Sunday a year ago. During the 17 hours from 8 o'clock in the morning until 11 o'clock at night there were 4,949 Wisconsin cars, 479 out-of-state cars, 48 light motor trucks, 53 heavy trucks, 50 motorcycles and one horse drawn vehicle.

Several tourists declared that when they left Chicago they were directed to stop at the fire department in Appleton for information for the remainder of their journey.

CITY MOVES DEAD TO FAVOR LIVING

Rapid Growth of an Francisco Necessitates Removal of Cemeteries

San Francisco, —San Francisco, growing rapidly and somewhat crowded on its bottle neck of a peninsula, will move the bodies of 50,000 of its dead from four cemeteries to make more room for the living.

The Board of Supervisors has just passed an ordinance for the removal of all the bodies from two cemeteries and it is said to be a forgone conclusion that the other two cemeteries also will be abandoned.

Once the cemeteries were far removed from San Francisco's business and residential quarters. Now they are in heart of some of the city's finest residential district and their areas are badly needed. The campaign for their removal, bitterly fought, lasted five years and included a state legislative act declared unconstitutional by the supreme court.

Proponents of cemetery removal built their campaign on the idea that "the dead have rights, but the living have superior rights." Opponents contended that the removal was fostered by "land grabbers in collusion with certain cemetery officials, booting the dead from their resting places to make profits for the living." They also declared "these dead are historic" and maintained that removal would bring a pestilence. Proponents responded that the old, untended cemeteries were "eyesores and not fit places for his toric dead" and denied any danger from removal operations.

The total land to be reclaimed amounts to about 70 city blocks, or 214 acres. The territory will be subdivided into lots. The cemeteries date from the gold rush days of 1849.

ON THE SCREEN

IDEAL CAST GIVES BREATH OF REALITY

If you believe the screen should show real people and real screen life and not the artificial creation of life as some scenario writers think it should be, then see "The Super-Sex," at the New Blou Wednesday and Thursday. You will enjoy it because it will give you the feeling of looking through a window at people inside a home next door or on the next block.

You will see Miles Brewster Higgins, 20, the typical small town boy who takes himself oh so seriously, his father, tired, worried, and his mother, best described as a composite of a hundred mothers. Also Grand ma Brewster, a verbal sharpshooter of rare ability who never misses a chance to remind Higgins of his shortcomings and the superiority of the Brewsters.

The cost . . .

Cost of fuel is equivalent to that of heating with coal. In many cases less. And that's the whole cost! You save the expense of a "furnace man"—$15 to $25 a month average—or your own time at equal valuation.

You save ash-hauling. You save constant cleaning and redecorating. For oil is clean. No dirt, soot, ashes, dust.

These savings are considerable, and in time Klean-Heet will practically pay for itself.

A type and price for every home

A Klean-Heet unit may be purchased precisely adapted to your particular heating demands. We offer a wider range of units than any other oil-burner company. We offer the exact model required for your home.

Prices include all installation and equipment—everything, ready to turn on at the first cold snap and run for the rest of the winter. We want to send you full details.

Guard against this mistake

Over 10,000 Klean-Heet installations are in use today, throughout America. Klean-Heet has 6 exclusive features—not found on other oil-burners. And Klean-Heet is unqualifiedly guaranteed.

So do not make the great mistake of purchasing an oil-burner which has yet to be proved!

Right now is the best time of this whole year to give intelligent consideration to Klean-Heet.

The coupon will bring an outline of new payment plan, prices, size of unit you'll need, etc. Plain, straightforward facts. Get them. They're valuable!

ASSETS OF WATER DEPARTMENT PASS MILLION DOLLARS

City's Proprietary Interest in Water Plant is $906,514

Contract for the purchase of 75,000 gallons of fuel oil was let by the Appleton water commission at a special meeting held in the city hall Monday afternoon.

The successful bidder was Johnson Oil Refining company of Chicago. The order is divided into two lots, the first lot of 30,000 gallons of 32-38 gravity gas oil to be delivered immediately for 5.48 cents a gallon, the other 45,000 gallons to be delivered according to future notices for 5.7 cents a gallon.

Original plans called for an order of 60,000 gallons of fuel oil for the oil heating system and for the oil for the engines at the pumping station, but the commission acted on a request of the city building and grounds committee to include 15,000 gallons which the city would use for the oil heating system to be installed in the city hall. The committee declared the city has no storage facilities, and therefore requested the temporary use of the water department storage plant.

At the meeting held on the Friday previous the commission allowed a payroll of $1,402.53 and other accounts in the sum of $6,010.42. It accepted the reports of the department accountant and the plant bacteriologist and superintendent.

$1,069.39 SURPLUS

The net surplus that accumulated during the month of July amounted to $1,069.39, making a total of $6,203.86 since Jan. 1. Operating revenue for the month including metered sales, street flushing and hydrant rental amounted to $10,377.53, while the operating expense in all departments totaled $3,409.51. The sum of $1,420.58 was reserved for depreciation and $1,252.71 was reserved for taxes.

With interest on funded debt and interest on the city's equity deducted from the gross income of $4,421.35, the utility had a surplus of $1,069.39. In the statement of assets and liabilities, the property and plant were listed at $912,931.07. With current assets, depreciation reserve sinking fund of $50,000 added, the total assets are given at $1,039,545. Outstanding bonds at this time are $344,000, the city's equity is $55,407.52, while the entire proprietary interest is $906,514.73.

The water pumpage in July showed a material increase over that of the past three months, according to the report of A. J. Hall, superintendent. The Diesel engines and the electric motor together pumped 53,840,000 gallons of water.

MINIMUM WAGE LAW IS WRECKED BY U. S. COURT

Madison—In view of the ruling of the United States Supreme court in the District of Columbia case, little hope for saving provisions of the Wisconsin minimum wage law relating to adult women is held by state officials. It was declared here today. The provisions were held unconstitutional in a federal court decision in Superior yesterday.

Legal officials who handled the case for the state were doubtful of the outcome of the case from the start. Unless the federal supreme court reverses its previous holding, the Wisconsin provisions are likely to be held void, according to Assistant Attorney General Meerscheidt.

However, the provisions held illegal affect a comparatively small percent of women employees when minors as well as adults are considered, it is said.

Some Tips On How To Prevent Trouble

The modern automobile, if it is treated properly, gives very little trouble. A large number of the troubles the average owner has with his car are not the fault of the car itself, but usually are the result of unskilled "tinkering" on the part of the owner.

usually this causes looseness which can generally be taken up by an adjustment. Now here is where trouble very often starts. There are numbers of adjustments that can be made very easily by the average driver, providing he knows exactly what he is doing. You are only looking for trouble, however, when you attempt to make an adjustment that you do not thoroughly understand.

DO NOT touch an adjustment or alter any unit on your car or start tinkering with it because you THINK it is not quite right. If you do not KNOW for an absolute certainty that the adjustment is necessary or if you are not quite sure how to make it, you will save yourself a whole lot of trouble if you take your car to the service station and have one of their mechanics do the job for you. In this way you will see how the adjustment is made, then the next time the same adjustment is required, you can do it yourself.

Sometimes quite a simple trouble develops, but if it is not diagnosed correctly, you can get half a dozen things out of adjustment before you finish. We will say that because you hold the choke button pulled out too long and choke the cylinders with very rich mixture, the engine will not start. What do you do?

The first thing you SHOULD do is to push in the choke and turn the engine over about a dozen times to "air" the cylinders. You would then find that the engine would start. Suppose, however, that you do not do this, but get out and lift up the hood. You probably tickle the carburetor through freely. You find that it is, so decide the carburetor mixture is not rich enough. You give the gasoline-adjusting screw a turn then again try to start the engine.

You find that it still will not start, because when you tickled the carburetor you only made matters worse. Now you DO have carburetor trouble, but you DID NOT have it before you tinkered with the carburetor.

Well, you say to yourself, if it's not carburetor trouble, it MUST be Ignition trouble. If you are wise, you will now take out a spark plug and lay it on top of the cylinder while you turn over the engine and watch the plug points. You can then see whether there is any life in the ignition system or not. If there is a spark, you know that the contact breaker and distributor are all right so leave them alone. If you then take out the plugs to have a look at the gap alone, if you find they are all right. However, when you take out the plugs you allow some air to get into the cylinders and dilute the mixture, with the result that when you again try to start the engine, it will fire.

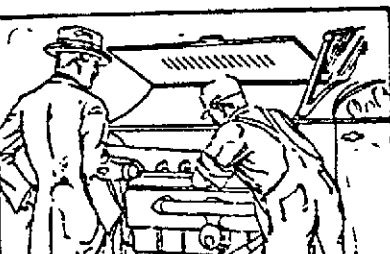

On the other hand, you may decide that the trouble lies in the points of the contact breaker, and take off the distributor head and start to "fix" up the points. You probably "fix" them all right—so that very soon you may have Ignition trouble. In the finish you call in a mechanic, and it takes him two or three hours to do what would only have taken him about five minutes if you had not monkeyed with the Carburetor or Ignition.

Now I do not say that you should NEVER touch either the carburetor or ignition, but you will certainly be avoiding trouble if you leave both of these units alone until you understand exactly what you are doing when you DO touch them. Every carburetor and ignition manufacturer has an instruction book that explains the operation and care of his unit. If you study these booklets you will know just what to touch and what to leave alone.

Better still, when something goes wrong with either the carburetor or ignition, take your car to the service station and have a mechanic who understands and has an interest in your car make the adjustment for you.

The surest way to prevent trouble, is to periodically go round and test the tightness of all bolts and nuts on parts that are liable to work loose. Take a look at all electrical connections to see that they are clean and tight, and that no wires are rubbing through the insulation at any point. See that the battery is tightly wedged in place. Drain off some gasoline from the vacuum tank and carburetor float chamber now and again so as to remove any dirt or water that may have collected. Keep all parts of the car clean so that if anything becomes loose or broken, it can be noticed easily.

Accumulation Of Another Fortune Is Ponzi's Aim As He Leaves Jail

BY HAROLD MATSON
NEA Service Writer.
Boston — Expect new things of Charles Ponzi.

The little Italian, at present enjoying a breathing spell between one prison term and the possibility of another, has no intention of retiring into obscurity nor does he expect to go behind the bars again.

"I have to make money," he told me when I talked with him in Plymouth county jail just prior to his release. "I have to make a lot of money. A man with debts and a family can't get along on a clerk's salary. And I certainly cannot afford to spend any more time in prison cells."

A plea something of this sort will be made in Ponzi's behalf before the courts that will hear 10 indictments against the man. Indictments that could not be satisfied until the federal government had done with him.

"Let me out and I'll pay my debts," is Ponzi's idea. However, he didn't make it clear that he meant to pay back all the money lost through his get-rich-quick scheme, nor that he hopes to open all the banks that were closed on his account. He does, nevertheless, expect to accomplish some degree of restitution to his victims, those countless small investors, most of whom were fellow Italians, for he asked the question: "How can I get square with the world if I am kept in jail?"

How he expects to accumulate another fortune is his own secret, but he smiles that he hasn't been in jail four years without thinking about something! No doubt the scheme will be within the law. Ponzi has had enough of prison life.

The jailer had said that Ponzi wouldn't talk to a newspaperman. However, he consented to bring Ponzi into the sheriff's office if the prisoner cared to come. Ponzi cared. And Ponzi talked.

His short little body has taken on some 30 or 40 pounds during his confinement, and his brown skin, freshened by the sun (for Ponzi, who has been made a trusty, was allowed to walk the field within the walls), gives him the appearance of a hardy, well-fed man. He went into prison a sick man.

"It's been a sort of sanitarium in effect," Ponzi joshed for your watch and chain." An official cautioned us in passing.

Ponzi laughed. It is well to laugh at an official joke. It is easy to laugh when one's term is nearly up. "I've been the librarian here," he volunteered. "I have had a great chance to do some reading. Mostly I have been planning for my future—you know, I have to work pretty fast when I get out for I'm no spring chicken."

"And I have been studying my

case a lot—watching politics, too, for a change in politics might have an effect on my case. You know, if politics had been a little different in Washington during my trial there might have been a different story. Daugherty wasn't any too popular even then. Somebody had to go to jail."

The man was excitedly interested in anything that pertained to his case, yet he seemed to be casual about his jail experience. It was a matter-of-fact affair that he should have landed in jail. Justice, morals? There was no talk of these. He was merely playing a big game, and the game went wrong—"somebody had to go to jail."

"I was particularly interested in the oil scandal," he continued. "I read it all—but I haven't read yet about anybody going to jail. Strange, how some people go to jail and some people stay out of jail."

Prison life at Plymouth, close to the spot where the Pilgrims landed, was surprisingly tolerable, Ponzi discovered.

It could have been worse. The man's eyes lit up at mention of his wife.

"Hasn't she been a thoroughbred? Waiting for me, working for my freedom all this time?"

Ponzi laughed at the suggestion that a tidy bit of his ill-gotten money is waiting for him, cached these five years. He seemed unworried at the possibility that some unforgiving investor might seek a personal brand of revenge when he is finally freed.

"No. My troubles are all in how to make new money—not with the old." The jailer led his prisoner away, commenting:

"He probably will make money again—while you continue taking notes and while I lock up cells for years to come."

BICKEL WILL HEARING OPENS PROBATE COURT

H. Kinder, Jesse C. Goe and William Haas.

What's the Hurry?

"Why are you adding so many telephones now? Why are you putting up new buildings? Why all this expansion? Why not wait until conditions may be more favorable?"

Here's the answer:
We have no control over the demands for telephone service.

As a public utility we must provide a high-grade communication service for those who have telephones; and we must meet the demands for new service when and where they come.

The people are saying to us: "We want telephones"—more and more telephones.

There can be only one reply:

"You shall have them—just as quickly as we can place the equipment."

Regardless of difficulties, we must place the wires, cables and switchboards, and other equipment in the shortest time possible.

We have not sought this tremendous construction problem. But we welcome it; for every added telephone gives your telephone more power. We're in business for just that purpose.

Special to Post-Crescent

Madison—The condition of several of Wisconsin's major crops on July 31, was below the five year average condition and the July condition of 1923, according to statistics prepared by Paul O. Nyhus, federal-state crop reporter. Corn, potatoes, tobacco, dry peas, dry beans and cabbage are among the crops showing lower averages than the five year period ending 1923.

On the other hand, oats, barley, rye, winter wheat, spring wheat, tame hay and alfalfa show healthy increases in condition over the last five years.

The condition of corn is placed at 72 per cent of normal, compared with 80 per cent at the same time last year. Potatoes show a condition of 68 per cent normal, compared with 80 per cent last year, and tobacco, 58 per cent normal, compared with 80 per cent last year. Corn acreage is estimated at 2,253,000 acres, approximately the same as last year; potatoes at 250,000 acres, or a decrease of 20,000 acres; tobacco, 35,700, compared with 44,000 acres last season.

It is estimated that the production of tobacco this year by the state will be 44,931,000 bushels, compared with 45,092,000 bushels last year. Corn production is forecast as 74,619,000 bushels, compared with 53,361,000 bushels in 1923. Potato production is estimated at 24,084,000 bushels, compared with 26,112,000 last year.

It is predicted by the report that alfalfa hay acreage will increase from 155,000 acres in 1923 to 217,000 acres in 1924. No production estimate is made for this crop. Timothy hay acreage remains about the same as last year, with 3,187,000 acres. Pastures are said to show a 92 per cent normal condition.

Production estimates are as follows:

Crop	1924	1923
Corn	2,253,000	2,253,000
Potatoes	250,000	272,000
Tobacco	35,700	44,000

Spring Wheat	58,000	53,000
Canning Peas	103,900	91,200

EGG YIELD IS CUT BY POULTRY PESTS

Fowls Should Be Dipped and Sprayed if Profit Is Desired

Vermin causes poultry raisers much trouble, especially by cutting down the egg production of flocks during hot weather.

Getting rid of pests is not pleasant work, but is necessary for successful yields of eggs, according to J. B. Hayes of the Wisconsin college of agriculture. No one treatment for both inhabitants of the poultry yard.

Sodium fluoride is still the best bet for controlling lice, Hayes believes. In hot weather a dip for the hens is as easy and sure as any method. Any bird that is old enough to have grown mature plumage may be dipped.

One ounce of sodium fluoride to each gallon of water is the proper strength. Dipping should be done on a hot day when there is no wind to prevent any ill effects from the bath. The fowl must be completely covered to get all the lice.

"Remember, mites stay in the house around the nests and roosts, and not on the hen, ordinarily," Hayes warns. Painting or spraying the house thoroughly is the only way to get them.

Either carbolineum used as a paint or waste crank case oil as paint or spray will do the work. Kerosene will kill them, but is not as effective as the others. It evaporates readily and will not last long enough to get all of the mites.

PREDICTS BIG SALES OF CATTLE IN FALL

Madison — Prospects for sale of Wisconsin dairy cattle to other states during the coming fall are bright, according to Prof. A. O. Collentine of the Wisconsin college of agriculture. Based on sales during the summer months, Prof. Collentine declares that the fall season should break previous records in dairy sales.

Two factories are expected to swell the fall sales: Interest created in Wisconsin herds by recent excursions to the state, and the necessity of replacing cattle destroyed by the foot and mouth disease in the west. A bumper grain crop in the southwest also should tend to increase sales because of better financial conditions, Collentine declares.

During July, 3,441 head of dairy cattle were sold to outside dairymen, Collentine reports. Illinois was the heaviest buyer from the state during the month, taking 1,741 head. Iowa was second with 301. Minnesota third with 245 and New York fourth, with 233. Mexico also took a large number.

Federal Dairy Cattle Bureau Is Established

Washington—The importance of the dairy cow and the growing complexity of American agriculture have finally been recognized with the establishment of the new bureau of dairying in the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Dr. C. W. Larson, head of the new bureau, was head of the dairy division of the bureau of animal industry, from which the bureau has sprung. He was born on a farm in Iowa and for the last 20 years has been actively interested in the improvement of dairying.

Although several European countries have been famous for their cows and dairy products, no country has gone forward in this industry as rapidly as the United States. Foreigners frequently comment on the safety of our milk supply and the marvelous machinery developed for handling milk from the time it is taken from the cow with the milking machine until it is delivered to the consumer in a sterilized bottle, cleaned, filled and capped by machinery.

Also the health of dairy cattle has been wonderfully improved, particularly in the eradication of tuberculosis, which is going on at an increasing rate. Each year shows an increase in the consumption of milk because it is becoming one of the safest foods and long has been recognized as one of the most nutritious.

Dr. Larson says that, in spite of the progress which has been made there is room for much more improvement, as many of the fundamental problems have not been solved. His bureau will study, among other things, the underlying principles of breeding to insure if possible the same results that breeders of grain, flowers and fruit are able to accomplish.

In addition to the laboratories, the dairy problems will be worked out on a large farm at Beltsville, Md., near Washington, at a commercial creamery and cheese factory at Grove City, Pa., and on experimental farms in various parts of the country.

EUROPEAN DAIRIES GIVE U. S. STIFF COMPETITION

Washington—European dairies are beginning to win back the dairy markets they had before the war. The United States dairy farmer is gradually being pushed out of the field.

This is the word brought back by rural economists who have been studying the farming and marketing situation in Europe. They expect the renewal of stiff competition by Russia and Denmark with the American dairy farmer.

"Russia used to be the source of much of western Europe's food," explains R. F. Taber, extension specialist in rural economics at Ohio State University. "Last year she had a material influence on the grain market. This year, judging by present indications, large quantities of butter will reach western Europe from northern Russia and Siberia."

"In 1918 and 1919 we exported around 30,000,000 pounds of butter each year. Last year Denmark not only eliminated American butter from the market, which took nearly half our export the previous year, but shipped enough butter to the United States to have a real influence on the price."

Cattle Sales And Checks For Milk Doubled When Laux Bought Purebreds

BY W. F. WINSEY

Dissatisfied with the size of his milk checks and the prices he was getting for his surplus scrub and backwoods brindles, J. P. Laux, Grand Chute, as a last alternative in the dairy business decided 14 years ago to rid his farm gradually of the costly offenders that were eating him out of house and home and to fill the vacancies with the best purebreds in the market.

After Mr. Laux decided to make this radical change, he experimented with stock selected animals of several breeds of dairy cows. Increase in profits did not warrant a permanent choice until he drifted toward the Holstein breed of cows which he found on the Fred Ziegler farm.

READY TO QUIT
In speaking of the critical condition his finances were in at the time when he decided to change to better cows, Mr. Laux told labor and feed were costing him nearly as much as he was getting for milk. He was forced by this fact either to get better cows or to quit the dairy business altogether.

When he finally entrusted the future of his dairy business to the purebred Holstein cow, he says he was looking only for additional margins of profit that might come from the sale of dairy products. The idea that he might get big prices for surplus calves and older animals did not occur to him. But he was not in the purebred game long before he discovered that purebreds offer a profit in both lines.

DOUBLES OUTPUT
With the same number of cows, Mr. Laux has more than doubled his former milk record and multiplied his price of surplus stock several times. He has sold a large number of young males and females at very

Cash Receipts Of Farms Grew In Last Year

Farm receipts showed a better average last year than 1922, according to figures compiled by the Department of Agriculture from 16,183 owner-operator farms.

The average cash balance at the end of 1923 on these farms was $890, and the increased inventory was $130, making the total amount higher than the $917 total of 1922. But the cash balance of $890 last year was all the average of these farms made available to the owner to pay his living expenses, take care of debts and make improvements. Interest on debts for 1923 averaged $230 and the outlay for improvements averaged $140.

Not much left for living expenses.

CHEESE PRICES PERFORM TRICKS, FARMERS REPORT

Wisconsin cheese is "traveling a rocky road and losing a chunk of the farmers' price at every bump," according to the state department of markets news letter.

The foreign cheese market has fallen off most recently, according to the department.

"Block Swiss for some unknown reason is in for the hardest trimming," the letter continues. "This week farmers and cheesemakers have come to the department of markets with all sorts of stories as to the price received for their cheese, ranging from 5 to 13 cents per pound while new cheese from Green and Dodge counties July 15 are quoted at from 22 to 24 cents per pound and held block from 25 to 32 cents per pound, according to grade."

United States now imports at least twice as much wool as the average import for 1900 to 1904.

COW TESTING AND ALFALFA MAKING WISCONSIN LEAD

More Prosperity Sure to Come
As Dairying Methods
Improve

Cow testing associations and alfalfa hay promise an efficiency in dairying which will make present day methods look hopeless.

Imagine Wisconsin in 1930 with 500 active cow testers at work in 500 cow testing associations. These testers will be putting yearly records of economical production on 230,000 cows owned by 15,000 dairy farmers. This will put twelve per cent of our cows on test. Denmark has twenty-five per cent of her cows in testing association work. At the present time, 165 cow testing associations are operating in Wisconsin, putting the test on 75,000 cows owned by 4,480 dairy farmers. This represents 3.8 per cent.

The average Wisconsin cow will be producing 6,000 pounds of milk and 225 pounds of butter fat in 1930 instead of 5,000 pounds of milk containing less than 150 pounds of fat.

The average C. T. A. cow will yield 300 pounds of fat six years from now instead of 270 in annual tests. Out of the state buyers will find it easier to locate a carload of good association cows in a township and will not be chasing all over the country to select a few cows from good herds.

Over 13,000 registered sires will be in use in C. T. A. herds. At least twenty per cent of the dairymen will have pure bred herds while today only seven per cent of all herds tested are registered. More sires with known production in their dams will be heading herds because

FEATHER MITE NEWEST OF POULTRY PARASITES

LaFayette, Ind. — Discovery of a new poultry parasite, called the feather mite, is announced by Prof. C. R. Cleveland, of the department of entomology at the Purdue experiment station here.

According to Prof. Cleveland, this mite has already been reported at farms in New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana. It spreads rapidly and lives and breeds on the birds. The common roost mite remains on the fowls only at night.

Because of their continual drain on the poultry, day and night, these pests are much more dangerous than other mites, frequently killing the birds outright. They may be found on all parts of the body, but accumulate most at the base of the tail and below the vent. Their life cycle, from egg to adult is only about eight to twelve days, so infestation develops rapidly.

During warm weather a careful dipping treatment is a good cure, the dip consisting of one ounce of soap and two ounces of finely divided flowers of sulphur to a gallon of tepid water. The soap should be dissolved first and the sulphur then stirred in.

In cold weather the dip cannot be used effectively. Instead, liberal dusting with finely powdered sulphur is recommended.

It will be easier to select them from good herds where practical farm records are kept. Most of the farmers will see the necessity of knowing which cows are losing them money.

Practically every C. T. A. member will be growing alfalfa hay in 1930. This will add him in producing butterfat at a lower cost. The calf clubs will be doubled in number. The "scrub" bull and the tubercular cow will be almost a thing of the past and the people of the state of Wisconsin will be having a more healthy and prosperous atmosphere.

Publicity Men Defeat Rotary Club, 11 to 3, in Final Contest on Their Regular Schedule.

Ad club Monday afternoon finished its regular schedule in the Lark Twi-light Baseball league by defeating the Rotarians, 11 to 3, in a walkaway, and with one postponed game to play off with their victims of this game stand a good chance of climbing out of their cellar position. Rotarians still have postponed games to play off with the Kiwanians and Lions, who lead the loop, and if they lose all three of these games they will be at the tail-end, one game behind the Publicity men. Lions and Kiwanis, tied for first, will meet Thursday afternoon to decide the leadership, and thereafter each must play the Rotarians.

The Advertisers took a lead of three runs in the initial stanza after the Rotarians had copped a run in the first half off a fielders' choice, two steals and a safety, playing stellar ball to put Marston out on third and maroon Gruef on the same station. Two hits, a sacrifice and a brace of costly errors gave them four tallies in the first. In the second stanza they got a hit, but in the third stanza they got a hot grounder through Urdan at left short and scored on Duck's sacrifice fly. The Admen more than made up for this run with three of their own in the second half of the inning.

MARSTON'S STRETCH HELPS
The sixth and seventh each gave the Admen two more tallies while the Rotarians were able to cop but one more in the seventh off two singles and a couple of steals. Joe Marston's long leg cost Ford a life in the eighth when Joe was forced to step across yards from the sack to keep Stearns' throw, but managed to keep one foot on the base while doing so.

The game was one of the fastest played in the Lark league, and showed great improvement in the Advertisers' playing. The Publicity men are making up for lost time, but have started a little too late to land in the first division.

The latter-day Admen—Murphy and Buchan, Rotarians—Gruef and Buck.

TROUT FLIES—Part I

The angler who can select the proper fly for the proper water during the trout season is a keen judge. The speckled beauties are a fickle bunch. They will take certain flies in the morning and absolutely refuse them in the afternoon. The size of the fly and its selection go hand in hand. At times a speckle or rainbow will want a large fly and at other times a small one, which keeps the trout angler guessing every minute. In fact trout fishing is a game of wits.

The old saying, "trout are wise guys," holds good at all times. There's many a speckled beauty that has "skinned" many a hook for years and got by with it but eventually the angler lands him on a fly that has been hidden away in a book for years and thought worthless.

Here's a list of the best flies for the beginner and they should be selected in three sizes: Small, Medium, and Large. Black Prince, Queen of the Waters, Professor Grizzly King, Cahill, Iron Blue Dun Bucktails, Devil Bugs, Trout Nudgets and Hackles in the above named flies.

They should be selected in hook size No. 6, 8 and 10. Occasionally the speckled beauties will refuse to take a fly with a No. 10 hook and the angler should select a few of the above named patterns in No. 12 and 14. Some of the experts use flies tied on as small a hook as No. 16.

2. A fence about two feet high marks end of playing territory and start of bleacher seats in left field. A hit into the bleachers is regarded as a home run. Batsman hits ball to left field and felder jumps fence and catches ball while standing on first row of bleacher seats. Would batsman be out or entitled to a home run?—J. L.

ANSWERS
1. The play you state is simply one involving the judgment of the umpire and consequently there is no grounds for a protest. If the umpire did not think the batter tried to bunt at the ball, than the batsman who was hit by the pitched ball was certainly entitled to first base. The way you state the play, it is my opinion that the umpire rendered the correct ruling. The mere fact that the batsman held the bat in a bunting position is not enough, he must actually attempt the bunt.

2. Batsman was entitled to a home run. Fielder cannot jump fence and make catch in restricted territory. Ball is out of play when it passes over fence.

"She's Better Than Helen Wills"

Berkeley, Calif. — "Lady-in-waiting to Queen Helen Wills," is the title which the coast has bestowed upon Helen Jacobs, 15-year-old girl of this city.

In her is seen the successor to that list of California tennis stars—May Sutton Bundy, Mrs. George Wightman, Mary K. Browne and Helen Wills—who have gone east and won highest tennis honors.

Miss Jacobs will make her debut in the east next month when she competes in the National Junior championships at Philadelphia. This event, incidentally, was the first eastern triumph for Helen Wills who, at 15—Miss Jacobs' age, now—won the junior title. That was in 1921 and again in 1922.

GETS SAME COACHING
Miss Jacobs is following in Miss Wills' footsteps on other matters also. The schooling, the experience, the coaching, all has been the same. And both prior to their eastern debuts had won the Pacific Coast championships in both the junior and girls' divisions.

Experts agree that Helen Jacobs is even more advanced in her playing than was Miss Wills at the same age. W. C. Fuller, the man who coached Helen Wills to a national title and now has Miss Jacobs under his tuition, gives a comparison not at all flattering to the younger girl.

"There is not much difference in the speed of the forehand drive at present," says Fuller. "Miss Wills has a better backhand stroke, though little Helen's backhand is good. But it has not the finish of that of the other girl."

BETTER THAN HELEN WAS
"But Helen Jacobs' service is fully as speedy as that of Miss Wills, and her court covering may be a little better than that of the national champion. However, she lacks the anticipation that comes from greater experience, although I cannot criticize her ability to sense the play."

"In the majority of departments, Miss Jacobs has an edge on Miss Wills at 15."

Carmen Tarilton, coast tennis star, who defeated Miss Wills when the latter was just 15, and who gained a triumph over Miss Jacobs very recently, concurs in this later opinion.

"I feel safe in saying that Miss Jacobs plays a better game now than Helen Wills did at her age," she declares.

Flocks of errors and a rain of hits Monday evening gave the Post-Crescents an easy victory 16 to 2, over the Retail Foot Fitters in the City Twilight Baseball league, in a game postponed from Friday. The Printers, knocked Lacke all over the park while Carter supported by flashy fielding, allowed but three safeties and struck out two men. Eddie Starnard pulled one for the books in the first stanza when he made a onehanded spear of Brand's drive, and MacIntyre also showed a flash of classy catching, grabbing R. Kasten's fast grounder in the fourth and shooting it to first. Starnard started two double plays when he caught a couple of high flies and shot the first to Schneider in first and the second to Bergman at second and caught the baserunners off the sacks after they had taken big leads.

SHOEMEN TAKE TWO
The Foot Fitters scored their first run in the second off a walk, a steal and a two-bagger by R. Kasten, while a couple of overthrows by Bente in the third gave them their second run. Outside of these two the Shoemen never threatened.

After being held scoreless in the first, the Printers profited by four hits and four errors in the second and piled up six runs. Lacke pitched a good game, but lacked support and was in hot water most of the time. He got through the third and fourth without allowing a hit, but several errors, one of them his own, gave the Inkshingers two more runs in the fourth. Langerberg, holding down first for the Shoemen, had an off day and was unable to hold the ball. Dyer's peg from third was wild more often than not, and allowed several Printers to reach first safely. The Post-Crescents scored three, four and one run respectively in the fifth, sixth and seventh, and meanwhile held the Shoemen scoreless.

The batteries: Post-Crescents—Carter and Bente; Retail Foot Fitters—Lacke and Hackworthy.

Grimes Checks Nine-game Winning Streak of Pirates and Makes Four Hits in 7 to 4 Victory for Brooklyn.

In the important games which are now shaping the end of the major league baseball season, pitchers are playing the hero roles usually seized by sluggers.

While Babe Ruth whose mighty bat carried the world's champions through earlier scenes rests for the moment, the once celebrated staff of Yankee twirlers is taking full advantage of an opportunity to pull away from Detroit and Washington as the two consistent challengers claw at each other.

The Yankees, as veteran Joe Bush held Chicago to four hits, bunched four of their five safeties off Robertson and Connally for a 2 to 0 victory that gave them a two and one half game lead over Detroit, which lost to Washington, 6 to 3, and dropped to within one half contest of the Senators.

Tom Sheehan and Burleigh Grimes corralled major league honors in losses suffered by the Giants and Pirates, contenders for the lead in the National. New York, in the longest game played in the majors this year, lost to the Reds in 17 innings, 8 to 1.

Grimes checked the nine-game winning streak of the Pirates and made four hits in the 7 to 4 Brooklyn victory. Three Pittsburg hurlers were ineffective.

The Aldridge held Boston safe while the Cubs pounded Yeager for a 6 to 1 win. Coveleskie coasted in with a 13 to 3 decision over four Athletic pitchers who yielded 16 hits to Cleveland.

Winward, promising Brown southpaw, held the Red Sox scoreless and to four hits in eight innings, but was overcome in the ninth by an avalanche of swats that earned a 3 to 2 victory for Boston. A homerun by Cy Williams with two men on paved the way for the 5 to 4 Philly win over the Cards, although Sherdell allowed only seven hits.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Young Bob Fitzsimmons, son of the former world's heavyweight champion, defeated Seldier Kne, Grand Rapids' lightweight, in ten rounds.

Louisville, Ky.—Billy McGowan, Atlanta, was knocked out by Harry Fay of Louisville in the seventh round after being floored nine times previously.

Birmingham, Ala.—Claude Wilson, and Beets Antier, Columbus, Ga., southern featherweight titlists fought ten rounds to a draw in which Antier's title was not at stake.

When choosing your gun and shells, remember that it's performance that counts.

At the traps, Winchester shotguns won more championships in 1923 than the next three makes combined. Two world's records were also smashed with these famous guns and shells during 1923.

Hunters who shoot Winchester guns and Winchester shells get the game. You get the same performance in the field as at the traps. Shoot the winning combination this fall.

Kid M'Coy Was Tricky
Fighter, Record Shows

New York — Kid McCoy, the fighter, was a many-sided character. Trickery and shrewdness were two of his dominant qualities. No fighter was ever more conceited, and few tossed the rugged attributes of honesty about more carelessly.

McCoy's first fight of consequence was in Cleveland against Billy Steffers.

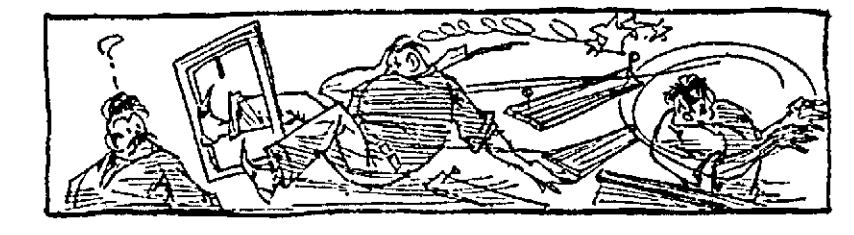

a formidable puncher. In the first round McCoy stuck out his jaw arrogantly and said, "Hit it, you bum." Steffers did. McCoy woke up 10 minutes later.

McCoy won the middleweight championship from Tommy Ryan partly by trickery. McCoy had been a sparring partner in Ryan's camp. The champion was a hard taskmaster. McCoy resolved to get him. Finally they were matched.

McCoy visited Ryan's camp. "I know you are too good for me," he admitted to the champion. "Don't show me up. Let's put on an exhibition." Ryan fell, hook, line and blarney. Instead of training he loafed. Surprised by McCoy trained as he had never trained before and came into the ring hard as granite. Ryan was flattened in 15 rounds.

McCoy revelled in his fistful prowess and figured in many informal knuckle-tossing tournaments. On one memorable occasion he came out second best. A college football star, who had just broken training, visited the Kid's saloon on Broadway. The athlete was not properly impressed by the fighter's fame. McCoy invited him into the back room.

The instant the door was closed McCoy planted vigorous swat on the collegean's jaw. The fellow was rushed of extraordinary stuff. Instead of going down he caught his balance, balled McCoy and tackled him around the waist. McCoy knew nothing about tackles. In a few seconds he knew plenty.

The footballer slammed McCoy to the floor, caved him the knee, picked him up, slammed him down again and then hurled him clear through the partition.

New Orleans — Pancho Villa's fly-weight champion, won a newspaper decision over Amos Carlin, Louisiana fighter, in 15 rounds.

Newark, N. J.—Jack Britton of New York, former welterweight champion, was marched to meet Jack Rapaport of New York in ten rounds in Newark, Aug. 25.

LETTER FROM BEATRICE GRIM-SHAW TO SALLY ATHERTON

DEAR, DEAR SALLY:
I wish you had let me know in time so that I could have come to you in your trouble. We haven't seen very much of each other in the last few years, dear, but I believe you have written to me more freely and more confidentially than to any one of your other friends. Indeed, I have sometimes marveled at the frankness of your letters.
I would like to have been with you at this time—that is, if you had thought I could have been of any comfort to you.
It's a queer world, my dear. I'm not going to apologize for that trite sentence because I believe I say it over and over to myself more than any other that I know.
I am sure that neither your nor my life is unique, and yet, nothing that either of us expected has come to pass, and much that we didn't expect has come to us.
I never thought, Sally dear, that your marriage would have turned out just as it has. It seems to me you have had more than your share of trouble. You've had to work so hard, and Sam's blindness, and now his death. I'm wondering what you think of it all.
This letter is not a usual letter of condolence, is it? But truly, dear, I think you are happier standing beside the open grave than I am looking into a deserted heart.
I'm wondering if you reached Sam in time to have come to any under standing before he passed beyond mortality's frontier. Had it been me that had been called under the same circumstances as you, I would have been any explanation.
You're better off, dear, than I. When we can write "Fini" at the bottom of any great adventure, we are much happier than when we are always hoping that possibly that adventure will open up, to something more intriguing than has gone before.
As long as Dick Summers shall live, I shall be hoping.
I expect when you read this, Sally, you will think I am very weak, especially as I cannot blame Dick for what he has done. Paula Peter is more beautiful than I. She is cleverer than I, she has everything that I have not, and because of this I am desolate.
I could not tell this to Dick. He wouldn't understand it. But I am telling it to you, dear, because I feel that you and Sam had come to the parting of the way, long before he had passed irrevocably out of your life.
Just why I am writing this way to you I do not know. You never have been conventional in any way, and I have never been before, un-conventional.
Will you go back into the office of Jack Prescott? I would love you to come and see me for a little while, for I have a feeling that contrary to the usual idea that a woman's life is ended when she returns from the grave of her husband, your has just begun.
Sally, dear, I'm sorry if you're sorry. You know that. For I am al-ways and ever your real friend.

Adventures Of The Twins

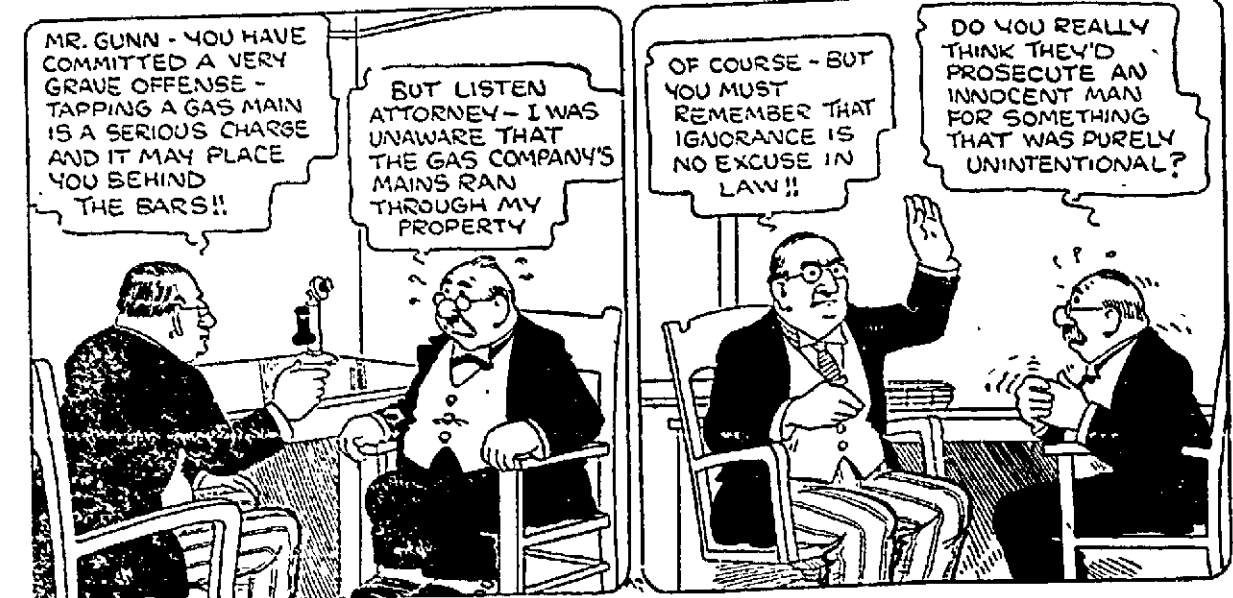

WHAT MRS. FIELD MOUSE SAID
"Did you find out anything?" asked Mister Zip. "Did you find out why so many people are getting into Happy Go Lucky Park, for nothing?"
The Twins shook their heads.
"Not yet," said Nick. "We went to see Mrs. Field Mouse in the basement of maple Tree Flats, and she says she gives Flop money for taking home washings. She says he spends it all coming to your part, and she doesn't care because she knows he's safe here."

"All right," said the fairman. "Maybe you'd better go and see Mrs. Mole next."
"We were just going to," said Nancy.
So away went the Twins to Mrs. Mole's house under the hazel bush. Mrs. Mole was at home and just doing up the lunch dishes.
Tap, tap, tap: went Nick on her front door.
Mrs. Mole dried her hands and answered it. "I do declare," she remarked to herself, "I never put my hands into a batch of biscuit dough or dish water or something like that, who do you s'pos it is?"
She put on her specs (for she was very near-sighted) and opened the door.
"Howdy, do," she said when she saw Nancy and Nick.
"How do you do," said the Twins.
"Is Mikey at home?"
"No," said Mrs. Mole. "He isn't. He's at Happy Go Lucky Park. He's there nearly all the time since it opened."
"Has he any money?" asked Nick.
"Money," exclaimed Mrs. Mole. "I should say so. Why, how could he get in without money. I'd like to know? The worst of it is just because he's so big for his age. Mister Zip charges him full fare. And he's two weeks younger than his cousin, who always gets in for half."
"It's kind of you to let him go every day," said Nancy.
"Oh, I couldn't afford it," said Mrs. Mole. "Only my brother always sends Mikey a dollar on his birthday. I keep it for him and give him 10 cents a day to spend. That's where he gets his money."
"Well, we will see him some time again," said Nick. "Goodbye."
So back to Happy Go Lucky Park went the Twins. To tell Mister Zip that Mikey Mole got 10 cents a day to spend.
"Hoping rain toads!" exclaimed Mister Zip. "That's funny! I sort of thought—"
Suddenly he stopped. "How much money did you say Flop Field Mouse got every day?"
"Ten cents for carrying washings," said Nancy.
"And how much money did you say Mikey Mole got?"
"Ten cents out of his birthday money."
The fairman pointed to two little figures in front of the peanut stand, each buying a bag of peanuts. And each was carrying a brand new balloon.
"Then tell me how they have any money left to spend will you?" said he.
"That's right," said Nick. "If each of them only got 10 cents to get in, how can they come every day and still have 10 cents to spend?"
"There must be something wrong," declared the fairman.
"We'll find out what it is," said Nancy.
"I wish you would," said Mister Zip with a worried look. "If things keep on like this, I never, never will make my fortune."

Movie Star Has Tragic End To Fame

BY GENE COHN
New York—Fame! How fleeting, how momentary! What a nothingness for humans to pursue! The thought springs from the fate of the old-time movie stars. In a day and a night nobodies, sprung into the white glare of electric lights, their names household words throughout the world.

And the next day—oblivion! Not quite that. A few stray "fan letters" straggle in from day to day. The illusory thread that holds an image of light and shadow on a screen to the affections of flesh and blood audiences is not completely broken once the image is removed.

Scratch your memory and certain names will loom large:

Florence Turner, the "Vitaphone Girl," Maurice Costello, who turned millions of heads upside down; Flora Finch, the laugh-provoking partner of John Bunny; Lillian Walker, with her dimples and long, golden braid; Mary Fuller and Helen Holmes—a long parade of them march down memory lane.

Three of them met at tea the other day and talked of Fame, the fickle jade.

"No, I don't believe the public is fickle," I know it isn't."

Florence Turner, of the tragic fate, tried ever so hard to hide the unhappiness behind the smile.

"They haven't forgotten. They are not given a chance to remember. It's the producers, not the people."

"How do I know? How does any of us know? By the fan letters, of course. I often think that if someone would get all the old gang together there would be a huge public to greet them back. But—"

Then a shrug of resignation. Florence Turner is just back from England, where she came to know actual privation.

In 1913, at the height of her popularity, she left America after organizing her own company. The war came. Her fortune was wiped out. Since then it has been one thing and another. Some theatrical engagements, and a tour on the road.

As she talked she fumbled at her hat.

"It is six years old," she smiled sadly.

Even her finery was of ancient vintage.

"Yes, I am going to try to come back," she said.

"Do you expect to return to the films?"

Lillian Walker, tanned to a deep bronze from life on a little New York farm, smiled wistfully and revealed the dimples that once had brought her fame.

"If they will let me," she said. "I, too, think the public would welcome us. I still get piles of fan letters asking where I am—and that helps a lot. It shows one is not forgotten."

Maurice Costello, his hair well silvered, years of tense emotional work seeming to have told upon his nerves, smiled reminiscently.

"I don't kid myself. I'm still good for heavies and characters. But I'd be a big boob to think I could do the juveniles and heroes again."

Costello here lances now. He may be seen from time to time in a character bit.

"I broke that kid in," he reminisced pointing to the golden-haired Lillian, whose long locks have been appropriated by a barber shop. "It's a pretty different game now."

If you want happy endings to your films you will have to be patient. There may be a happy ending to this one yet.

Here Is The Latest In What To Wear With Tailored Suit

The three most approved methods of dressing the neck to the best advantage for the tailored suit are shown here.

Most popular is the scarf which leaves one completely mystified as to the blouse beneath. This may be rectangular or square and may be any color of the rainbow and of practically any material, but the most popular are of silk, and the designs, whether in black or white or in colors, give the effect of having been printed on.

The blouse that fastens closely about the neck comes next in favor. Its collar may turn over to soften the severe line of the plain lapel, or may be a feminine version of the regular he-man shirt, or it may even be a high one fastened closely about the throat.

To wear a fancy vestee, without sleeves, that fastens like a blouse and gives the appearance of being one is another favorite device that will be even more popular as the season advances and the extra protection about the throat is no longer desirable.

Use Judgment In Removing Summer Stain

Most stains or discoloration by a fruit juice, ink, grease or whatever substance fall under a few definite heads, and if we know how to treat one we can treat all of a similar kind. It is easy to see that the agent which will remove a stain either forms one of its original ingredients or is an opposing chemical. For example, one of the most common mishaps is to sit down on a newly painted park bench or brush past a freshly painted doorway. Since the paint was dissolved in turpentine in its original form, we find that turpentine will be one of the most effective means of softening and loosening the paint from our waist or skirt. Or again, many stains such as those of fruit, which are caused by the fruit acids, can be most readily removed by treating with some form of alkali which will neutralize the acids—that is why we employ the familiar alkalis of borax, Javelle water, etc., so frequently in stain removal.

Before attempting to remove any stain the worker should stop and ask herself: What made the stain, and what is the nature of the textile affected? The sooner the cause of the stain is analyzed the quicker the right remedy may be applied. An animal stain, such as gravy juice or spilled eggs, stays on the surface of the goods; a fat or oil stain, as from cream or chocolate, will make a "ring" of oily appearance surrounding it; vegetable stains cause the material to suffer; all of these—any animal fat or vegetable stain—are best treated first with cold water or hot water to dissolve them, if the material and its dye permits. If water may be used, then alcohol, ether or benzine may be tried on fragile materials and delicate dyes, for water, soap, oxalic acid, alcohol, ether, benzine and gasoline are some of the most useful solvents, as they are called, by means of which these classes of stains are dissolved, loosened and washed out.

In the case of heavy goods or clothing, or where an oil spot is very marked an absorbent is used, such as blotting-paper, French chalk or magnesia. Here the article is to be left lying covered in the absorbent for some hours then thoroughly shaken. A blotter is used under fabrics when lightly pressed with a warm iron which will melt the grease spot at the same time the oil is absorbed by the clean blotter beneath. From the Designer Magazine for August.

Royal Chef Is Treated Movie-Style

New York—The movie hero isn't the only man that gets fan letters these days—not by any means.

Monsieur de Gero receives on the average of 200 a day, with photographs, presents and promises thrown in, and he's never been an actor in his life.

But he has been a caterer to the royal English family for many years. He accompanies the well-known Prince of Wales on all of his trips, and knows that young gentleman's likes and dislikes pretty well by this time.

Since he arrived in this country in advance of the prince, who is not due until August, he is besieged with requests from women from all over this country begging him to allow the introduction—and they will do the rest.

"Alas," he confided to me, "they do not know how hard this is. Unless there is a public reception—and the prince hates those—there will be very little chance. And all requests must be taken up with the private secretary of the prince and with Vice Admiral Sir Lionel Halsey—and there is much red tape."

Then remembering the one sure route to a man's affections, he passed on this information about what his royal highness likes to eat.

"For luncheon, English food, roast beef, Yorkshire pudding, and substantial foods; for dinner, French cooking. He is very fond of game and cares very little for mixed drinks or champagne. His favorite drink is Scotch and soda."

The recipes for the prince's favorite meat dish and salad he also divulged, and here they are:

BREAST OF CHICKEN, CALCUTTA STYLE
For this you need the breasts from three-and-one-half or four pound chickens, seasoned with salt, inside and out. First take some white onions, very finely chopped, and fry in butter until they are a light brown in color. Peel one raw apple and chop very fine and let it simmer with the onions for another 10 minutes. Then spread over this mixture Indian curry powder, and wet the whole with chicken broth until it forms a light green colored sauce.

Boil this slowly for about an hour and a half and then strain through a sieve. Then pour over the chicken.

SEYMOUR EXHIBIT BUILDINGS CAN'T HOLD ALL ENTRIES

Fair Officers Obligated to Leave Some "Exhibits" Out of Doors

Products of home, farm and factory fill the pens, stables and exposition buildings at the Seymour Fair which opened Monday and ends Thursday. George F. Fowler, secretary of the fair, reports numerous entries and exhibits. The race track is in good condition, he said. Fifty six harness horses are entered for the trotting and pacing races and fifteen for the running races.

The crowded condition of the exhibit barns made it necessary to leave 50 horses in the open Monday night. One of the most interesting attractions at the fair is the ostrich show. Since leaving Los Angeles, however, twelve ostriches broke their legs and had to be killed. One broke its leg at Seymour and had to be killed Tuesday morning.

Fake Stamps Net Chief Of Gang Fortune

By Associated Press
Chicago—Frank Juschinsky, alleged head of a counterfeit stamp and fake whiskey label ring, arrested Monday night, has made $150,000 through his operations in three years, according to detectives who said he has confessed. He is willing to spend five years in the penitentiary as a result, they said.

Five million counterfeit stamps, several hundred thousand fake labels for 20 brands of whiskey, and 45 plates for strip stamps were confiscated by agents.

Juschinsky's calculations may go awry, officers said, pointing out that he is subject to a sentence of 15 years for possessing counterfeit stamps in addition to five years for each of the plates.

BUILDS HIMSELF GARDEN OF EDEN

Old Man Models a Paradise Out of His Home—Finds Fair Young Eve

Lincoln, Kas., Here on the outskirts of this little Kansas town an old, old man has built himself a Garden of Eden.

And into it he has brought a fair young Eve to share with him the happiness of his waning years.

He has found his Paradise. But unlike most of his old cronies who entered theirs in death, he is enjoying his life.

Seventeen years ago, when he was 64, S. P. Dinsmore began changing his plain little home into a Garden of Eden. He was his own architect and landscape gardener.

First he made a house out of concrete "logs." Then he turned to molding statues of all kinds.

Now in the trees and on the ground surrounding his little cottage are dozens of figures that tell the story of the original Paradise.

There in cement is Satan, the tempter. And over yonder are Cain and Abel and a Guardian Angel.

In branches of trees are many other Biblical characters.

Then there are statues which express his sentiments in regard to capital and labor. In one group, Labor is being crucified by a lawyer, a doctor, a preacher and a banker.

In another is a soldier shooting an Indian, the Indian shooting a dog, the dog chasing a fox, the fox pursuing a bird and the bird eating a lowly worm.

At one edge of the garden is a mausoleum. In it, in a concrete coffin, rests his first wife. And there is another casket—an open one—for himself.

WIFE IS 20

Not long ago, Dinsmore finished work on the garden of his dreams. But though serenely happy amid all this beauty, there was something missing in his life. He was lonely. It only he could find someone to share his joys.

Twenty-year-old Emilie Brozek, young enough to be his great-grandchild, consented to be his Eve. What mattered it to her if Dinsmore now was 81?

"I have found greater happiness than most brides ever find with young husbands," she says.

And Dinsmore only smiles and adds:

"If you would be happy, make your home a Garden of Eden."

U. S. BACKS PROBE OF M. S. DAUGHERTY

Federal Government Upholds Attempt of Senate Committee to Gain Information

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C.—The attempt of the senate Daugherty committee to inquire into the affairs of M. S. Daugherty, brother of the former attorney general, was fully upheld by the federal government Tuesday in an appeal in the state's unsuccessful contempt proceedings against Mr. Daugherty in Ohio.

A department of justice brief filed with the court declared the committee had ample constitutional authority for its action and had not sought, as held by the lower court, to exercise judicial functions. The brief declared also that the committee had not made encroachment upon any of the prerogatives of the house of representatives under the provision placing the power to impeach in the hands of the house.

The senate inquiry was not a personal investigation of the former attorney general, the government argued, but was directed to produce information required by the senate within the exercise of its legislative duties. Both sides of congress, it was held, have the constitutional power to punish to the extent necessary in order to prevent obstruction of their functions.

The lower court had erred, the brief continued when it entertained the habeas corpus proceedings brought by M. S. Daugherty, because it had no right whatever to interfere in the matter.

JUDGE SEVERS FOUR MARRIAGE KNOTS TO THE COURT RECORD

Four Couples Separated by Divorces Granted in Municipal Court

Four divorces were granted Monday by Judge Fred V. Heinenmann, acting municipal judge, thereby equalizing the record for one day's work in divorce proceedings in municipal court here. The divorce proceedings, with the exception of a mortgage foreclosure case, occupied almost the entire day in municipal court.

A marriage made possible through a matrimonial agency proved unlucky for George Dufield of Appleton who was granted an absolute divorce from his wife, Mrs. Emma Dufield, whose address was not known. She left her husband last February and believed to have returned to her former home in Canton, O. Dufield charged her with cruel and inhuman treatment. They were married nine years ago. Dufield was represented by Rooney and Grogan, but Mrs. Dufield did not contest the suit.

Mrs. Clara Groth of Appleton obtained a divorce from her husband, Fred William Groth, also of Appleton, on the same grounds. They were married in 1910 at Menominee, Mich. Mrs. Groth was allowed the possession of the household goods and personal effects. There was no contest. The plaintiff was represented by Attorney J. P. Frank.

A settlement of $2,500 was agreed upon in the suit of Mrs. Jennie Peterson of Ohio, against Peter S. Peterson of Route 1, Bear Creek. Mrs. Peterson was given an absolute divorce and the custody of a 19-year-old daughter, while the defendant retains the custody of a 15-year-old daughter. The plaintiff also charged cruel and inhuman treatment. She was represented by Rooney and Grogan. The couple had been married since 1888.

A fourth divorce, previously reported, was granted to Mrs. Elizabeth Knorr from Gustave Knorr, Monday morning on the same grounds. In the case, attorneys for the defense, Henry Kregels, divorce counsel, appeared for the state in each case.

DUSTIN FARNUM FREED FROM BOND OF WEDLOCK

By Associated Press
Reno, Nev.—Charging desertion, Dustin Farnum, 30-year star was granted a decree of divorce at the district court here Monday by Judge Mary Elizabeth Farnum, to whom he was married in November 1904 at Chicago.

Mrs. Farnum did not contest the decree except to answer the complaint and make a general denial of the charges. The Farnums have been separated 12 years, the actor testified.

Among the offerings at Sotheby's with the most art are valuable pictures the property of Lady Edward Grosvenor, Sir John Hippisley, and other articles belonging to the Countess of Gosford and Cora Countess of Stratford.

It is many years since any of the Duke of Westminster's collection of old masters have appeared in the auction rooms, although some star pictures have occasionally been sold by V. O. the bargain and treasures from Blenheim have rarely been obtainable in the lifetime of the present Duke of Marlborough.

The belief that nearly everything sold goes to America is not entirely true. The good old reliable, but uninspired British landscape artists of 100 years ago, whose works harmonized perfectly with the old country houses, are enjoying a boom in prices such as have never before been honored with. The majority of them are practically unknown in America, and are not in demand there, yet the swiftness with which $2,000 or $3,000 are bid for pictures that went begging on the painters' hands, shows that there is yet money in England for art.

By Associated Press

ALL HAD TO BE VACCINATED!

Nearly every one of the 2,000 inhabitants of the village of Deer Park, O., near Cincinnati, had been exposed to smallpox, the health authorities figured. A grocer, it was found, had been conducting a business as usual, though helping his wife, suffering with the disease. So every man, woman and child in the town were vaccinated. Here Dr. C. A. Neal, health commissioner, is seen at work.

HARD TIMES BRING BRITISH TREASURES TO AUCTION ROOMS

Roofs of Ancient Country Mansions Fall Because Owners Can't Afford Repairs

London.—Sir Rider Haggard writes to The Times deploring that the roofs of old English country mansions are tottering and falling in because the owners cannot afford to keep them up and there is no one to buy them, and that with them disappear the old English country life of which they were the center. The contents of these old houses are pouring onto the market as they have never done before, and popular belief is that most of these valuable are bought in by London art dealers for their American customers.

Even some of the old families which are known to be immensely rich, according to English values, are taking advantage of the high tide of art prices. For example, for sale soon at the famous Christie auction rooms is a group of old masters of world reputation, put up by the Duke of Westminster, which includes three pictures by Rubens forming part of a series said to have been painted by order of Philip IV to decorate a Carmelite convent, also a Virgin and Child by Van Dyck.

Other lots offered at Christie's, which combine the value of patrician associations with art, are: "Old English Furniture and Needlework the property of Her Grace the Duchess of Wellington," and carved oak furniture "the Property of His Grace the Duke of Marlborough and removed from a farmhouse on the Elenheim Estate. Also porcelain belonging to the Right Hon. Earl of Haverley, C. B., of the Savoy, and from Keele Hall, Staffordshire, which have a romantic flavor and consists mostly of old silver, furniture and porcelain; a valuable collection of pictures left by the late Earl of Hardwick; furniture belonging to the Earl of Sandwich; and a few old masters put up by the Right Hon. The Earl of Clarendon, P. C., G. C. B., G. C. V. O.

Among the offerings at Sotheby's with the most art are valuable pictures the property of Lady Edward Grosvenor, Sir John Hippisley, and other articles belonging to the Countess of Gosford and Cora Countess of Stratford.

NEW HOME FOR ART OWNED BY NATION, URGED FOR CAPITAL

By Associated Press
Washington—Art treasures are jostling for valuable examples of man's progress in other fields, in places of obscurity in the National Museum, and in consequence the scientists of the country have come to the support of the American Federation of Arts in its campaign for a National Art Gallery.

Bills providing for the construction of a national gallery are being prepared for introduction in the Senate and House should funds for the structure not be raised by gift or bequest, and Charles A. Platt of New York, has been commissioned to design the building by group of art patrons who have subscribed $10,000 for this purpose. Meanwhile, however, the situation is described as acute.

Art was one of the subjects to be cultivated under the bequest of James Smithson, with which the Smithsonian Institution was founded in 1846, but science and history claimed principal attention for many years. The archeological exhibits that have been gathered are recognized by scientists and historians as being among the finest and most important in the world.

The steady growth of the scientific and historical collections has resulted in the expansion of the Smithsonian group of buildings into four of which the New National Museum is one. When they were planned, art occupied only an incidental place among the exhibits, and no special provision was made for its preservation.

In recent years, however, the government, which has a hand in financing the institute, has been given art collections of great value, including works by Titian, Luitel, Rubens, Rembrandt, Manet, Gainsborough, Reynolds, Turner, Romney, Raeburn, Hogarth, Constable, and other masters. This store is created beauty, already valued at something more than $5,000,000, will be increased by numerous other gifts and bequests. It is said, as soon as the private owners are assured of adequate arrangements for the care and display of such treasures.

Charles L. Freer of Detroit, who recently gave the government the most extensive single art collection it has received, provided a special gallery for it as a cost of $1,250,000 but it is pointed out that few connoisseurs are able to make such gifts and many of them are willing to have their most prized possessions put on display in make-shift quarters.

Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian institution, who has charge of the national art collection as well as the scientific exhibits, has emphasized the need for a separate, especially designed building in which to house the former. Not only is the United States the only great nation in the world that has no national art gallery, but the existing buildings have become so crowded that expansion of the historical and scientific as well as the art exhibits is being retarded.

The government has granted the institution a site on the Mall of the capital for a gallery, but funds have not yet been made available for its construction despite the fact that science and art as Dr. Walcott puts it, "should both have buildings of special design in which the treasures which are being preserved for posterity could be suitably displayed for study by scientists, artists and historians."
